

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE WILL CARRY

ITALY AND TURKEY, TAFT MAKES PLEA WITH ARMISTICE, NEAR END OF FIGHTING

Italy's Military Expedition Will Be Unmolested in Africa.

TROOPS ARE LANDED

Turkish Force Retires to Hills and Will Try to Reach Tunis.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—The armistice between Italy and Turkey, for which German diplomacy has been striving for some time, has practically been concluded. It is believed here, although not yet announced, as "official."

It is understood the Italian military expedition will not be interfered with, but that hostilities in all quarters will cease. This is considered in Berlin as equivalent to the ending of the war, or at least the warlike movements, which will now be succeeded by negotiations looking to a settlement.

TROOPS LANDED

TRIPOLI, Oct. 11.—The first transports bearing a portion of the Italian expeditionary force arrived here today. They were escorted by warships and accompanied by the hospital ship Regina d'Italia.

The disembarkation of the troops began immediately.

The batteries of the fleet all through the night shelled the surrounding country, which was swept by the searchlights. Tripoli has nothing more to fear from Turkish attacks.

PLANNING ESCAPE.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Communication with Tripoli having been re-established, details of the situation—there are pouring in—from today's advices it would appear that Muhib Pasha, the commander of the Turkish garrison, until the last moment expected reinforcements. When compelled to retreat before the Italian guns, his force went so hurriedly that of necessity many supplies were left behind.

Muhib is now gathering his force in the Ghirian hills to which he retired. He has at his disposal provisions for six weeks, without including what he expects to obtain by confiscating everything that he is able to seize on the Ghadames caravan routes. It seems to be the intention of the Turkish commander to resist the Italians as long as possible, but if he is not reinforced, to gradually retire until he reaches the frontier of Tunis, which his forces will cross rather than fall into the Italians' hands.

SHOPMEN STRIKE ALL VERY QUIET

Many Men Paid With No Trouble; Photographing the Pickets.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—Elaborate plans taken by Illinois Central to protect its plant in case of trouble with the strikers on pay day today proved unnecessary, and although the streets were crowded, the day was as quiet as it could be. About $200,000 was paid the men from cars outside the shop.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 11—An incident that served to arouse the resentment of the strikers today was the appearance of a Southern Pacific employee who carried a camera and who took several snap shots of the pickets. Some of the men openly invited the photographer to "take their pictures, but the most part the strikers turned their backs to the camera. Superintendent Sheridan, who accompanied the photographer refused to make a statement of the reason why the pictures were being taken.

PAKISTAN, Oct. 11—The four thousand striking shopmen formerly employed at the Burnside shops of the Illinois Central railroad were paid their wages for September today. The payroll aggregated $200,000 and a large force of workmen were busy disbursing checks. The strikers were paid from booths which previously had been built in the fence surrounding the plant.

ENGLISH STRIKERS.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 11—On the application of the Illinois Central railroad Judge Humphrey in the U. S. circuit court today issued a temporary injunction restraining strikers from interfering with the road in the Southern district of Illinois.

A hearing of the motion for a permanent injunction will be held Nov. 6.

HOLD APPLE PARADE.

WATSONVILLE, Oct. 11—A line of apple laden wagon three miles in length, forming the main body of an industrial parade, featured the Watsonville apple show today. Special excursions from San Jose and the bay cities added $500 persons to the crowds on the streets.

TAFT MAKES PLEA FOR JUSTICE IN DEALING WITH RAILROADS

In Speech to 5000, Says "Common Sense" in Matter Needed.

TALKS ON SUFFRAGE

Says Reciprocity Is Dead Issue, for Present Time, Anyhow.

PORLTAND, Oct. 11.—Speaking to more than 5,000 persons in the Army here tonight, President Taft made a plea for "common sense" in the exercise of ordinary justice in dealing with the railroads of the country.

"Let us treat the railroads as part of the community entitled to adequate compensation for the service rendered," said the President. "Don't let us encourage attacks on the railroads just because they are railroads. There are an immense number of wage earners dependent on the railroads for support; there is a great number of shippers dependent upon them."

"Let us treat the railroads as a part of our civilization, and when we find a man who is trying to claim political power just by condemning the railroads, let us visit him with the condemnation he deserves. Let us leave the railroads to work out their destiny under the law. Let us take them out of politics and make them out of politics."

Turning to arbitration, Taft explained in terms of the peace treatise. Bearing in mind one point made against the treaties of particular interest to the Pacific Coast, the President pointed out that no treaties would ever force the United States to admit the citizens of another country if they were not wanted. "If we don't want to let them in," said the President, "then we don't have to let them in; we don't have to make a treaty to let them in and they can't get in without that if we don't want them."

PORLTAND, Oct. 11—After one of the busiest days of the present trip, President Taft crossed the Columbia river into Oregon and arrived in Portland tonight. He spent the day in traveling south from Tacoma. The only long stop was made at Olympia, where Taft was the guest at luncheon of Governor Hay of Washington. Tonight the President sat down to dinner with the Portland Commercial Club, and later delivered an address in the armory. The President spoke on all sorts of subjects today, from the tariff votes to woman's suffrage and peace arbitration, and there were many incidents that contributed to make it out of the routine.

At Castle Rock and at Woodland, the President ventured into short discussions of woman suffrage. He said that the East was looking to Washington, the largest commonwealth in the world, that had woman's suffrage. To prove it was wisdom or folly, he said, "If all women vote, he said at Woodland, 'it will be a success, if they don't it won't be—but I hope they will all vote, and we are all looking to you to see if it will be a success. If the ladies go in and recognize their responsibility in ruling the state, just as they rule at home, then it will be a success."

At Klamath, the President had been asked to speak on peace, and as he alighted from his train four doves were loosed by a member of the reception committee. One circled high above his head for several minutes while he was speaking.

The President had a little opposition at Castle Rock. A man dressed in red, who circulated copies of a socialist newspaper with a glaring front page, editorially directed against the President, ran as a counter-atraction, and even tried to stand at speaking distance, but the President, but he did not make much headway.

QUIZ CHILDREN.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Oct. 11—The Taft special reached the capital of Washington on time. The President was driven with Governor Hay immediately to the capitol building. Before making his principal address to several thousand persons, Taft stopped to exchange courtesies with several hundred school children. He put several questions to the children, but there was only one apparently that they could not answer.

"Who is with me?" inquired the President, turning to Governor Hay. "We don't know, sir," answered a score of voices, and the crowd laughed.

"Well, he's your governor, Hay," continued Taft, with a laugh.

"Yes, sir," dutifully echoed the children.

The President spoke from the capitol steps. He chose the tariff veto for his subject, and explaining how the bills came before him declared that reciprocity "is a dead issue, at any rate a dead issue at present."

"It's pretty hard nowadays to tell who is a Republican and who is a Democrat," said the President, in beginning his speech.

The President congratulated Washington upon the progressive legislation that has been adopted in the state, and said that he was especially interested in the workers' compensation act, a subject now being considered by a special committee appointed by Congress.

CATALINA IS "ANTI."

AVALON, Catalina, Oct. 11—Catalina township cast a total of seventy-three votes for the constitutional amendments. Woman's suffrage lost by a vote of 25 for to 47 against.

BACK COUNTIES' VOTES SURPASS EXPECTATION; FORECAST IS REVERSED

If Ratio of Gain Is Maintained, Amendment Will Have Safe Margin, and Late Returns Indicate Several Thousand Majority in Final Count

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Incomplete returns from 2462 precincts in the state give for woman suffrage 111,557; against 112,365. Majority against the amendment 808. These figures leave 658 precincts to be reported. The ratio of gain by the affirmative vote is sustained.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Comparatively full returns from yesterday's constitutional amendment election in California indicated late tonight that the woman suffrage amendment had carried by a narrow margin. With only 783 precincts to be heard from, the majority against the amendment was 1901, the vote being 102,726 to 104,627. On the ratio of gain by the affirmative vote tonight, if continued, the amendment will have carried by several thousand votes.

With 2411 precincts heard from earlier tonight, the majority against was 3922; the gain for the amendment in the last 296 precincts received was 3826. If this ratio is maintained, suffrage has carried by a comfortable majority.

Following are the returns on all amendments from 2337 precincts:

Amendment No. 1, for 114,149; against, 37,689.
Amendment No. 2, for 91,325; against, 53,681.

COUNT EXCITING.

With the San Francisco count complete and nothing to do but check off the state majorities against the opposition lead there, a spectacular race ensued. At 10 p. m. tabulations showed suffrage 3,990 behind, then but 1800, then, after midnight, 308. At this juncture, a comfortable majority for the other important amendments, all interest centered on amendment 4.

Early morning predictions were that the amendment had a chance to win. Though the back counter vote continued to run strongly for the amendment, during the forenoon it was announced that the fate of the amendment hinged on the San Francisco vote, and the vote was being set off against the majority of some 5,000 for the amendment from the remainder of the state. It was announced still later that the San Francisco majority against was 12,283 and the rest of the state could be counted on for a majority of not more than 8,000 for, and it was declared the amendment had been defeated.

Through the day, suffrage leaders had practically given up, and issued statements that the newly passed initiative would be invoked to get suffrage on the ballot in 1912.

I turning point was marked on returning from the Sacramento valley, where he had been with several hundred school children. He put several questions to the children, but there was only one apparently that they could not answer.

"Who is with me?" inquired the President, turning to Governor Hay. "We don't know, sir," answered a score of voices, and the crowd laughed.

"Well, he's your governor, Hay," continued Taft, with a laugh.

"Yes, sir," dutifully echoed the children.

MEXICAN REBELS ARE SLAUGHTERED

Chiapas Insurrectos Are Easily Cut Down By the Federals.

TUXTLA.. GUATELLAS. Chiapas, Mex., Oct. 11.—Fighting late Monday afternoon for the possession of the little town of Chilapa, held by insurrectos, whose strength is estimated at 900, resulted in numbering, but 190 killed 120 rebels and captured 106, eighteen of whom were wounded. The loss to the government forces is given at less than a dozen killed.

Edmundo Paz, with federal troops, arrived here today to assist the volunteer guards in restoring order.

Chilapa was retaken by the volunteers. Following the occupation of Chilacumulon by the rebels, old women and wounded soldiers are said to have been killed.

"General" Antero Ballinas, commanded the rebels, and according to the prisoners, escaped with the majority of his force. His second in command, "Colonel" Marcellino Jimenez, was one of those killed.

J. B. McNAMARA IS PLACED ON TRIAL

District Attorney Fredericks handled the prosecution, aided by the assistants regularly employed in his own office.

A delay seemingly interminable to eager spectators occurred at the opening of court while a procession of veterans expounded to Judge Bordwell why they should not be asked to serve. This was the end of a preliminary hearing in which the judge, rapidly waded out over half the first venture of 125 men before the trial formally opened.

McNamara was brought into court, looked about, and remained until James B. McNamara was selected for trial, when John J. was returned to his cell in the county jail.

After a few minutes of parley, Attorney Lecompte Davis, for the defense, faced the waiting veterans and made the first speech of the trial.

"The court suggests that I inform you that when you enter the jury box you will remain there or be locked up until the end of the trial," he said. "If you want to see your wives or attend to your business, you had better do so before this afternoon."

Recess was taken at 11:10 o'clock until 2 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

James B. McNamara was brought into the courtroom at 2 o'clock by Sheriff Hammel, unaccompanied by his brother John J.

The latter today saw the last of the chamber until he is formally placed on trial, which it is now expected will not be for at least several weeks.

Court re-convened at 2:05 o'clock and the examination of tatemen was concluded.

Twelve tatemen were placed in the jury box out of the venire, which originally numbered 125 but today contained less than forty.

District Attorney Fredericks read the indictment to the tatemen, pointing to the prisoner and explaining the case briefly so that the veniremen might know in what the criminal might be charged. And when absolute calmness of mind and deepest study are the perquisites to become trial jurors."

Lecompte Davis, for the defense, asked the usual questions concerning qualifications.

Z. T. Nelson, a farmer 62 years old, was the first man questioned.

"Are any of your sons in any contracting business?"

"No," answered Nelson.

"Are any of your sons in any way connected with organized labor?"

"Not that I know of."

"Do you belong to any labor union or any branch of organized labor?"

"No."

"I presume you are aware of the bitter warfare going on between organized labor and capital?"

"Yes."

QUESTION OF LABOR.

"Are your sympathies with organized labor or not?"

G. Ray Horton, counsel for the prosecution, objected to the question and Davis responded to the court, declaring that the same was "one that involved organized labor."

"I have no doubt," said Davis, "that the prosecution will bring in as a motive the attitude of organized labor."

"The contention will be that organized labor caused the explosion to get

GAS IN YOUR STOMACH NOT ALWAYS DYSPEPSIA IT'S NERVOUSNESS

Your Nerves very often make your stomach irritable. It refuses to work, food does not digest and Gas forms.

That's one kind of Dyspepsia, the Nervous kind, and this kind you can cure only by a Remedy that acts directly on the Stomach Nerves.

Baumann's Gas-Tablets do this to perfection. They are made especially for Gas. They act on your Stomach Nerves, they quiet the irritable, rebellious gas-forming Stomach and not only relieve, but cure Gas permanently.

Really it seems a pity if you suffer from Gas in the Stomach and Bowels to try Baumann's Gas-Tablets.

IRELAND DENOUNCES DIRECT LEGISLATION

Archbishop Terms Them the Mere Weapons of "Mobocracy."

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Oct. 11.—Initiative, referendum and recall were termed the weapons of "mobocracy" by Archbishop Ireland in an address at the banquet of the Army of the Tennessee here tonight.

Archbishop Ireland said:

"The clamor is heard that the American democracy, such as the Republic has known for a century and quarter, must be torn asunder under the pretense that with it, the people do not govern with sufficient directness. 'Democracy'—yes, 'mobocracy,' never!

And toward mobocracy we are bidden to wend our way. The shibboleth of the clamor you know—the Initiative, referendum and the recall, are nothing more or less than the madness of Democracy."

"With the Initiative and referendum, active, legislative bodies become mere bureaus of registration and exchange for popular views and opinions. All conclusive authority is lost to them. Ultimate verdict, it is true, rests with the whole people, but many, we must admit, are the problems regarding which the whole people have no adequate knowledge, to which, in the throes of a political campaign, the people are unable to give the requisite reflection.

"But the worst is the recall. Stability of independence in office for a fixed period is essential."

"The perils from the recall are shown when it is extended to the judiciary. If ever independence from popular clamor is imperiously demanded, it is when men are bidden to speak in the name of supreme justice, regardless of consequences to persons or parties, when absolute calmness of mind and deepest study are the perquisites to a decision."

Lecompte Davis, for the defense, asked the usual questions concerning qualifications.

Z. T. Nelson, a farmer 62 years old, was the first man questioned.

COLORADO VERY HIGH AND DAMAGE IS HEAVY

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 11.—According to special dispatches received here from Greeley tonight, the Colorado river has risen to its highest point of the year and has cut its way through the big dyke on the Arizona side.

"Thousands of acres of reclaimed lands are flooded and the settlers are said to be abandoning their homes. The damage is heavy."

When the dyke on the Arizona side broke, the pressure on the California side was relieved and no fears are felt by settlers on this side.

The telegraphic communication with Butte was resumed to Helena tonight at 10 o'clock, after twenty-four hours' interruption. This is the only wire

SUFFRAGE VOTE

Returns at midnight indicate a complete reversal of the estimates made during the day yesterday on the women suffrage amendment. At noon yesterday the count stood nine thousand and against the amendment. At midnight it stands nine hundred, with a practical certainty that the remaining precincts will overcome the difference and put California on the side of women suffrage. That result, when achieved, even by the narrowest majority, is of course irrevocable, since any future vote on the subject would be participated in by the women themselves. California has evidently taken the step from which there is no turning back.

The astonishing paradox is, as we pointed out yesterday, that the majorities for suffrage come from the localities and social classes where it is theoretically disputable and practically unimportant, while the majorities against it come from the very places where it is practically needed and theoretically beyond dispute. In the country, where the family is the unit, where the women live in homes and those homes are represented in the vote, and where women have most of the rights they desire, the question whether women shall vote is largely one of sentiment, on which men of different temperaments take sides almost by instinct. A decision either way, among people of that sort, could scarcely be criticized. But in San Francisco the home and the family have almost ceased to be the social unit. The majority of the women of San Francisco probably either earn or at some time in their lives have earned their own livings. More people eat in restaurants and sleep in lodgings in San Francisco than almost anywhere else. Distinctly, the characteristic place of the San Francisco woman is an individual place. The social condition which made for exclusively manhood suffrage is going out of existence in San Francisco. And the women, especially the working women, (who are most of them) have many practical economic problems in which it is very important for them to have votes for politicians to fear. Yet San Francisco, where women suffrage is theoretically and practically the only consistent attitude, furnished the whole majority against it, while the country, where either position could be theoretically defended, and where it is practically very important, gave a large majority for it.

GUARDING THE TREASURY.
Watchmen Are Armed and Officials Keep Revolvers in Their Cases.
A few days ago a visitor in the treasury-building—who had—paused—to talk with a friend who started to see a man coming down the corridor, wearing a life star on his breast and carrying a revolver of huge dimensions. It was not strapped in his holster, but was carried in the right hand, as the bearer was ready to go into action. The visitor asked with some show of alarm what it all meant, and was told that one Secretary MacVeagh's recent orders were being carried out by a watchman. The secretary reached the conclusion, some time ago, that the watchmen should go about armed.

PLLOWED UP A WATCH.
Allowing for one season out of four when the ground would not be plowed, a gold watch found in a field on the farm of the late Marshall D. Stith, in Brynningham Township, must have been turned over with the sod fourteen times. In the eighteen years it has been lost. In spite of that the case is practically intact, though the works have long ago rusted out.

The timepiece was lost in 1893 by Jason Lanberman, who was then in the employ of Smith. It was found by Samuel Hineline, the present tenant, who was plowing the field preparatory to putting in buckwheat. It lay at the foot of a cornhill.—New York Sun.

MORMONS SEAL TIES TO THEIR NEW WIVES

Twenty Mormon families, consisting of twenty husbands and as many "other wives," arrived here from the Mormon settlements in New Mexico having made the journey that they might "go through the temple," which in the language of the inner church means that their polygamous marriage ties, contracted in New Mexico, are to be confirmed here by the high priests.

To avoid coming in conflict with the Utah constitution these Mormons have brought to Salt Lake only the "other wives." The church rite by which the husbands are "sealed" to their additional wives for eternity is performed only during conference week, when devout Mormons gather from all parts of the west to hear the revelations of the prophet and take degrees in the temple. The conference week begins October 5, and 30,000 Mormon families are gathering here for the ceremonies incident to the annual occasion.

Among the women accepting the Mormons who arrived from New Mexico for confirmation of their marriages by the prophet and the apostles are many girls, hardly out of their teens, daughters of Mormons who fled from Utah to the New Mexico settlements and were married since the conference a year ago.

The ceremony of "sealing" occupies several days.—Salt Lake Dispatch to New York Herald.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S CHURNS

Queen Alexandra has not lost interest in her dairy, and since she has withdrawn almost entirely from court life she gives more attention to her pretty model farm adjoining Sandringham, in Yorkshire. This dairy was one of her pet projects, and for a time she derived a good income from butter and cream sent to York and to Leeds. Of course, she sold through an agent, but her secret got out and King Edward forbade any further commercial ventures. In the twenty years in which the queen has led the rural life during the summers in Yorkshire she has added to her collection of churning and dairy utensils until she has now one of the most complete assortments of dairy equipment in the royal kitchen.

WHAT A WOMAN WROTE IN 1794 ON SUFFRAGE QUESTION

There has been handed to the Record a book, the title page of which bears this inscription:

"Vindication
of the
RIGHTS OF WOMAN
on
Moral and Political Subjects
By Mary Wollstonecraft, Philadelphia.
Printed by Mathew Carey,
No. 118 Market Street.
1794."

The book is a remarkable one. For strength, clarity and logic, the author is the peer of any who have written on the subject from any viewpoint. The work was written at the time of the formation of our Government, and its contents reveal unmistakably that the "woman question" is not a new one, and that even in that early period there were women who protested against the injustices in the social compact that regulated them to inferior positions.

The remarkable feature of the book lies in the emphatic Mary Wollstonecraft places on the claim that men can not progress and still keep women down; that frivolous, undisciplined and irresponsible women are worthless to themselves and a handicap to men; that in a state of solid and political equality alone can men and women maintain those higher relations that are necessary for helpful, moral and satisfactory lives.

The Record proposes to publish a number of excerpts from this remarkable old book. They will show that even the suffrage question is not new, and that the moral and economic phases of sex equality were understood by clever women in the days of old. Today we give a number of paragraphs from the book's "Introduction," and will follow it later by the main arguments of the author.

WHAT A WOMAN WROTE IN 1794.

"I have repeatedly asserted, and produced what appeared to me irrefutable arguments drawn from matters of fact, to prove my assertion that women cannot, by force, be confined to domestic concerns; for they will, however ignorant, intermediate, with more weighty affairs, neglecting private duties only to distract, by cunning tricks, the orderly plans of reason which rise above their comprehension. Besides, while they are only made to acquire personal accomplishments, men will seek for pleasure in variety, and faithless husbands will make faithless wives; such ignorant beings, indeed, will be very excusable when, not taught to respect public good nor allowed any civil rights, they attempt to do themselves justice by retaliation.

"The box of published thus opened in society, what is to preserve private virtue, the only security of public freedom and universal happiness?

A FREE SOCIETY.

"Let there be no coercion established in society, and the common law of gravity prevailing, the sexes will fall into their proper places. And, now that more equitable laws are forming our citizens, marriage may become more sacred; your young men may choose wives from motives of affection and your maidens allow love to root out vanity.

"The father of a family will not then weaken his constitution and debauch his sentiments by visiting the harlot, nor forget, in obeying the call of appetite, the purpose for which it was implanted. And the mother will not neglect her children to practice the arts of coquetry, when sense and modesty serve her the friendship of her husband.

"But—till—men—become attentive to the duty of a father, it is vain to expect women to spend that time in their nursery which they, wise in their generation, choose to spend at their glass; for this exertion of cunning is only an instinct of nature to enable them to obtain indirectly a little of that power or which they are unjustly denied a share; for, if women are not permitted to enjoy legitimate rights, they will render both men and themselves vicious, to obtain slight privileges.

"Manners and morals are so nearly allied that they have often been confounded; but, though the former should only be the natural reflection of the latter, yet, when various causes have produced vicious and corrupt manners, which are very easily caught, morality becomes an empty name. The personal reserve and sacred respect for long ago rusted out.

SOCIETY

Last night at the St. James' Episcopal Church were solemnized the little dress of white and carried a nuptials of Miss Hazel Griffith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Griffith, the same flower adorned her yellow and Walter Johnson of Turlock. The floral decoration in the church was sumptuous for Mrs. Teague a simple, but beautiful arrangement, her of years ago.

Mrs. Griffith entered on the arm of her father, looking lovely in her bridal array. Her gown was of ivory white crepe, netted with a square train. Pieces of rare old Carrick-Mass applique embellished the robe with trimmings of seed pearls.

At the appointed hour exquisite vocal numbers preceded the entrance of the bridal party, the soloists being Mrs. Don Parker Biggs, soprano, and Miss Virginia Cleary of San Francisco, contralto. To the strains of the Leonora wedding march, the party entered the church, the four brothers Lloyd Griffith, Frederick H. Moore, Alfred H. McKenzie and Donald Forsyth preceding, followed by the four bridegrooms in dainty frocks of pink chiffon with silver garniture. They carried silver basket filled with Cecile Bouquet roses. They were Misses Ruth Griffith, Pauline Griffith, Margaret Griffith, of Berkeley, and Gladys Teague, of Oakland, all cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Katherine March of San Francisco, the maid of honor, was stunning in a gown of yellow embroidered chiffon, with gold lace and pearl trimmings. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley and pink unshaded mallow fern.

Little Mary Louise Teague made an candelabra cast a rosy glow over the setting. The ornament for the bride's cake was the same thing that used on her mother's wedding cake. Touches were made and responded to in happy manner. W. W. Phillips presiding in the capacity of toast master.

The many handsome gowns of the guests present added to the beauty of the meeting among the most conspicuous being that worn by Mrs. S. N. Griffith, which was a rich combination of cloth of gold over ice blue moire. Mrs. Lilian Marsh was beautifully kown in a trimmously becoming robe of cerise chiffon with silver embroidery. Mrs. Frank Helm wore a very handsome gown of red satin with black mantilla, with rich passementerie, with it she wore a large picture hat of black with red plumes. Mrs. E. E. Mathews was adorable in a white chiffon frock with fancy beaded fringe. Miss Leda Elliott made a lovely picture in a neatly embroidered white net dress ornate with a huge crushed rose and touches of black velvet. A large black velvet hat faced with pink completed the costume. Miss Dagmar Bradford and Miss Anne Meaux both were attractive in pink satin frocks with silver trimmings. Mrs. William A. Sutherland wore a notably beautiful gown of black sponged net, and Mrs. Arthur Goodwin was stunning in a black satin gown, with the bodice cut over soft white in Greek effect.

The billiard room was given over to the display of the wedding gifts, and perhaps no other Fresno gift has been more lavishly remunerated by his friends on her wedding day. All of the presents elegant silver and glass being prominent. In the display, with some handsome oriental rugs. A chest of silver in the Dolores pattern was the gift of the bride's mother, while a personal gift for the bride from an intimate friend of the family was a beautiful string of pearls.

Dainty little pins studded with pearls were given by the bride to her attendants as souvenirs of the occasion, while the groom remembered his attendants with pearl cravat pins. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left late in the evening for San Francisco, where they will sojourn until Saturday, when they sail for Honolulu on an extended honeymoon tour.

Upon their return they will reside in Turlock, where an elegant new home is present in the course of construction.

The Leisure Hour club met yesterday at the home of the president, Mr. George W. Carrington, Jr., by Mrs. B. Miller in Shakespeare's "Alcazar for Measure." Before beginning, she gave a talk on the book "How to Live on Twenty Hours a Day," by Arnold Bennett. Five new names were added to the club membership, Mrs. Roy Woodward and Mrs. Lindley, Mrs. Ruth Miner, Mrs. Ralph Woodward, Miss Sadie Cox.

The guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Frank Craycroft and Mrs. C. C. Lingie. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Burgess, 329 Glen Avenue, on next Wednesday. After a short business meeting Mrs. S. L. Wiley led the club in the study of the daughter's marriage.

Christian Jorgensen, aged 29, and Ella Christensen, aged 20, natives of California, city residents. Consent to his marriage was sent on by the father, Jacob Jorgensen, at Vegen, Denmark under date of December 14, 1910.

Hugo F. Kuld, native of Denmark, aged 29, and Katherine J. Tait, native of California, aged 31, city residents.

COUNTY JAIL IS HOTEL FOR TOWN FINED PRISONERS

County Must Pay on Refund Claim of Selma, Less Cost of Keep.

Such City Sentenced Prisoners Cannot Be Worked By County.

Assistant District Attorney McCormick laid down the law for the supervisors in black and white yesterday on the claim of Selma for $848.50 as fines collected by the sheriff for the county from prisoners sentenced for town ordinance violations, and ruled that the money must be refunded or accredited to the town treasurer.

Mr. McCormick pointed out also that the county has the legal right to deduct, however, in favor of the county the expense of confining prisoners and guarding them. In short, the county

ACTUAL STARVATION

Facts About Indigestion and its Relief that Should Interest You.

Although Indigestion and Dyspepsia are so prevalent, most people do not thoroughly understand their cause and cure. There is no reason why most people should not eat anything they desire—if they will only chew it carefully and thoroughly. Many actually derive themselves into sickness by eating of all kinds of good-looking, good-smelling, and appetizing food, because it does not agree with them.

The best thing to do is to fit yourself to digest any good food.

We believe we can relieve Dyspepsia. We are so confident of this fact that we guarantee and promise to supply the medicine free of all cost to every one who will use it, who are not perfectly satisfied with the results which it produces. We exact no promises, and put no one under any obligation whatever. Surely, nothing could be fairer. We are located right here and our reputation should be sufficient assurance of the genuineness of our offer.

We want every one troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia in any form to come to our store and buy a box of Rexal Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them home and give them a reasonable trial according to directions. Then, if not satisfied, come back. They are very pleasant to take; they aid to soothe the irritable stomach, to strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, and to promote a healthy and natural bowel action, thus leading to perfect and healthy digestion and assimilation.

A 25c package of Rexal Dyspepsia Tablets furnishes fifteen days' treatment. In ordinary cases this is sufficient to produce a cure. In more chronic cases a longer treatment, of course, is necessary, and depends upon the severity of the trouble. For such cases, we have two larger sizes which sell for 50c and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexal Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexal Store, The Monroe Drug Co., Mariposa and J streets, Fresno, Calif.

Apartments Also Need the Bungalow Player

Have you ever experienced the homelike atmosphere of the modern bungalow? It combines everything that's cozy, comfortable and pleasant.

But no bungalow is altogether complete without the Bungalow Player Piano (Registered). To an atmosphere of comfort it adds a musical atmosphere.

And it's just as essential to the apartment and the flat as to the bungalow.

The Bungalow Player Piano plays the full keyboard, 88 notes, has the improved five-point motor (which insures noiseless operation), soloist device, automatic tracker, primary and secondary pneumatics—in short, has every essential of a $750 player piano.

Small enough for the bungalow, the apartment, the flat, it is powerful enough to tone for a medium sized hall and suitable for the finest home.

The price, $435, is no more than you would pay for an ordinary piano—and we furnish a complete studio library of music rolls free. You may pay it in installments as low as $25.00 per week.

The Bungalow Player is the sensation of the year in player pianos. An artistic instrument that makes your home a musical home from the day you get it.

The first carbon shipment was sold in four days without news-paper announcement.

Jail is a hotel for city sentenced prisoners.

"City Attorney Galloway of Selma stated before the board," said Mr. McCormick, "that $1 a day would be fair for the board and keeping of a city prisoner in the county jail. You will have to determine that rate by the cost of the two or three meals a day, the cost of mattresses and bedding and the pro rata charge on account of guards and deputies in charge of the prisoners."

"A dollar a day is a pretty cheap hotel rate," mused Chairman Jorgenson, but all these financial details will be worked out by County Expert Hughes to verify the claim of Selma and to ascertain how much shall be deducted for board and keep.

"There is one more thing I desire to call the attention of the board to, and that is that under the new order of affairs the county cannot work city prisoners in the courthouse park or as janitors in the courthouse. It would be manifestly unjust to have these city prisoners paid for and the county on county work receive the benefit of their labor."

This last announcement by Mr. McCormick made more of a flurry at the board session than the one that Treasurer Hickman will have to refund to Selma $648.50, less cost of the board and keep of town prisoners in the county jail. The number of misdemeanor prisoners in the county jail has fallen off so perceptibly that for several months there have not been enough of prisoners to be put out at work in the parts of the courthouse. And now Mr. McCormick further reduced the supply.

The written opinion to the board quoted sections 1457 and 1570 of the Penal Code as amended in 1905 as being applicable to Selma's claim, and it read:

"From a reading of these sections it appears that if the money in question was received by the sheriff of this county in satisfaction of fines imposed by the recorder's court of the town of Selma on a charge of violating an ordinance of said town, the amount should have been paid to the treasurer of Selma, less proper deductions in favor of confining such prisoners for the period of their confinement. In the collection of such fines, the sheriff is an officer of the court imposing the fine acting in the capacity of jailor for the municipal corporation."

"Section 1457 of the Municipal Corporation Bill is applicable to the town of Selma and provides that:

"Any person sentenced to imprisonment for the violation of any ordinance may be imprisoned in the jail for such city or town; or if the board of trustees by ordinance shall so provide in the county jail of the county in which such city or town may be situated, in which case the expense of such imprisonment shall be a charge in favor of such county and against such city or town."

The board of supervisors should fix and determine an amount to be charged against any city or town availably of the foregoing statute, that will cover the expense of imprisonment of each prisoner charged with a violation of a city or town ordinance.

"Any and all charges in favor of Fresno county and against the town of Selma should be deducted from the fines and forfeitures collected by the sheriff of Fresno county, and paid into the county treasury from prison fees convicted of the violation of ordinances of Selma, and the balance should be transferred to the treasury of the town of Selma."

Free Cure for Constipation

Send Your Name and Address Today.

It has been decreed that the old style pill for medicine must go. Most constipation remedies are as bad as the disease, and often cause terrible griping due to the powerful medicines in certain. Most constipation remedies give only temporary relief, and a pill night after night becomes no panacea.

The new laxative, Phigandy, is eaten like candy at bed time, and a gentle movement of the bowels without any griping or pain is the result in the morning. It seems a pity that people should suffer when such a simple remedy can be had for the asking, for the manufacturers, The Phigandy Co., 634 Mission street, San Francisco, will gladly send a sample free, by mail, postpaid, to any sufferer who will send his name and address.

Phigandy is sold by all druggists at 25 cents per box. It is guaranteed to do the work or money refunded.

MARRIED BLIND MAN FOR PENSION MONEY

Colored Veteran Finds He Is Tied to Woman Who Has Husband Living.

George W. McWilliams of Selma has all he wants of law and the courts, because of his marriage to Nettie Brown on the 2nd of November, a year ago, before City Justice Graham. McWilliams is a colored man, a veteran of the civil war, and because of blindness draws quite a government pension quarterly. Aside from his pension he has property and is considered well-to-do.

The marriage was a disappointment.

His attorney, James A. Burns, says that notwithstanding his affliction he was persistent and property made him attractive in the eyes of Mrs. Nettie Brown. They lived together about three months, and then she brought suit for divorce for the pensioner on the ground of cruelty.

This case is on the court's lists here undecided. The woman has come in with a claim for alimony, declaring that her husband is worth more than $2000 besides the pension allowance.

For the plaintiff the case has been held back pending investigations as to the woman's antecedents in Alameda county.

These bore fruit a few days ago, and as a result the divorce case will go by the board in view of the complaint filed yesterday asking for an annulment of the marriage here in November, 1910, for if there was no legal marriage there can be no divorce.

Investigation in Alameda proved that in November, 1910, the Brown woman was sued for divorce by W. J. Brown, then nothing further was done in the case after the filing of the complaint, and that she is yet a married and undivorced woman. So being, she could not legally have married the Selma defendant, who alleges in his complaint of yesterday that she represented herself to be an unmarried woman, whereas she had an husband living, from whom she had not been separated.

GOOD SECOND DAY IN TAX PAYMENTS

Collections Are $5617.82, as Against $2028.38 for Last Year.

They met yesterday on the second day of collections a half hour in the tax collector's office taking in money on the first installment of taxes due. The day's business is summarized in the following tabulation of paid-up statements:

104 County	$8412.47
59 Fresno City	1848.32
5 Selma	50.88
3 Colton	37.53
1 Kingsburg	58.24
1 Fowler	104.10
Total	$5617.82

This was considered a fairly good day's showing for the second day's tax collections, as considerably more than the sum paid in the first day's collections, totaling $2028.38. The day's collections also included money received by mail. The office activities began early in the morning with the handling of the mail and the sending out of bill statements to non-resident taxpayers. Every tax bill of a non-resident goes through the mail four times before finally paid, two hundred such mail statements until the list is exhausted, go out in the morning before the actual work begins of taking money over the counter.

The two largest individual taxpayers yesterday were E. R. Holton of Selma who plunked down $106.25 and C. P. Johnson of Mendota who parted with $224.29.

Tax statements three may be had by personal or mail applications.

INSPECTOR NAMED ON PAINTING JOB

Work on the county awarded contract for the water-color-white painting of the courthouse was taken up again as soon as the painter, Mr. W. H. Sowell, had finished painting the interior of the building.

He will now have an inspector on the job and the board yesterday appointed as such supervising painter A. J. Brittain. His client will be G. E. Supervisor Johnson guaranteed his competency, stating that he has been in the business for 15 years.

SHEEP KING WILL GO INTO DAIRYING

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 11.—Harry Quinn, familiarly known as the "sheep king" and who owns vast tracts of land in the Big Creek district, has closed a deal for the purchase of 250 acres of alfalfa land just to the west of Porterville near the old Quinn bridle, paying $19,200 for the property.

Mr. Quinn expects to put the entire tract out to alfalfa and will go into dairying on a large scale.

Mr. Quinn is the owner of the large sheep ranch just west of Porterville, and he has 10,000 sheep on his ranch.

THREE NEW ENGINES SENT HERE FROM BAKERSFIELD

Shopmen in Kern County Turn Out Rolling Stock Since Strike Began.

Five New Helpers Put to Work Here at Round house and Shops.

A new passenger train engine, the third since the strike began, arrived here last night from the Bakersfield shops. The number is 1534, a sister engine to the ones used on the Owl. The others are 1466 and 1469, both of which were made in the Bakersfield shops since the strike was called on September 30th. No. 1534 was also constructed in these shops and sent here expressly for use on passenger trains running over the San Joaquin Valley division.

This division is 996 miles in length, which is as long as the average railroad system in the eastern states. There are now twenty-one engines "switched" in the Fresno roundhouse ready for immediate use on the valley division. The only new engines are the three recently turned out of the Bakersfield shops.

MEET AT BAKERSFIELD.

General Superintendent Worthington of the San Joaquin Valley division last night sent word from Bakersfield that all is quiet in the southern yards; the company has all the men it needs and the rolling stock is in good shape. Early this morning a telegram was received here that a dozen strikers had gathered in a tight bunch around themselves on the streets of Bakersfield while discussing the strike. They both voted, however, on other amendments.

Yesterdays work was stopped by union leaders who wanted to come to Fresno. Five machinists sent in their applications yesterday. The letter was sent on to Bakersfield last night and the men may be sent there to work in the shops. Dadds declared that no additional help is needed here at present, the working force at the roundhouse and shops being the same size as before.

Health and Beauty Advise

BY MRS. MARIE MARZYN.

Mr. D.T.: No you are not too old to renew your charms, complexion, even though your face is wrinkled and blemished with enlarged pores and blackheads. You can clear up and improve your complexion by using the following cream-jelly: Mix together two teaspoonsful cold water, one-half teaspoonful glycerine, a few drops of castor oil, half a pint cold water. Stir and let stand a few hours before using. This cream-jelly is unequalled for freshening up a dry, rough skin, and accomplishes wonders in eradicating wrinkles, blackheads and other eye-troubles. It is an absolute remedy. Your beautician uses this, and every woman who uses it finds a big improvement in your complexion.

Mrs. Rose: You must be a pitiful sight to look upon, with so much hideousness fat, instead of displaying your fine features, and your skin looking sort of worn out. To this horridus remedy: Get four ounces of paraffins at any druggist's and dissolve it in a pint and a half of hot water. Take a tablespoonful before each meal, and your fat will disappear as by magic. This is a safe and inexpensive remedy, telling me what a grand thing it is. It cuts down fat rapidly and leaves the skin smooth and free from wrinkles.

Mrs. E. R.: Ignorance is the only acceptable excuse for a field of poor hair. But little care you can have just as nice a head of thick lustrous hair as your daughter. In the first place never wash your hair with soap, as the soap is too caustic. Use J. P. Hixson's hair soap, short, streaky and white. Try shampooing about twice a month, with a tablespoonful of camphor dissolved in a cup of hot water. The abundant lather cleanses perfectly, rinses easily and dries quickly. If you will not do this, take on this thicker soap and taking on that beautiful healthy look an much desired, and you will no longer be bothered with dandruff.

Mrs. A. J. C.: Don't worry, for modern science has given up a remedy for hair and scalp trouble that is simply wonderful. It is a soft blood plasma, given from your druggist, half ounce, dissolved in one ounce oil, mix together in a bottle, then add a half pint cold water. Although it is very simple, inexpensive remedy, this tonic rubbed into the scalp twice a week eradiates dandruff, keeps it off the scalp and stimulates falling hair quickly. It keeps the scalp in a healthy condition and promotes a vigorous, natural growth of glossy hair.

JUDGE GEO. CHURCH DOES NOT VOTE ON WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE

Though he worked hard in the cause of woman's suffrage and addressed a large number of meetings in its behalf, Judge George E. Church did not even record a vote on the suffrage question on election day.

Though he spoke against suffrage in the state senate at the time the measure came up for adoption for submission to the people, State Senator George W. Cartwright did not record a vote on the suffrage question on election day.

The failure of these two men to vote was due to the fact that they varied their votes.

Judge Church happened to meet Cartwright on the street one day a short time before the election and the conversation immediately turned to woman's suffrage. The jurist made up his mind to Cartwright's speech in the senate against equal suffrage and then suggested that the two pair their votes. The suggestion was accepted by Cartwright and as a result, there were at least two Fresno voters who declined to express an opinion at the polls. They both voted, however, on other amendments.

MANUFACTURED FOR THE MEN.

Additional electric arc lights were installed in the yards near the roundhouse, car shop and stockade. During the dark hours the interior of the stockade is as light as day, light guards are stationed here and eight more throughout the yards.

J. P. Hixson, district passenger agent of the Southern Pacific, yesterday received an official statement from San Francisco in which one of the heads of the company commented on the strike situation as follows:

"From 10 o'clock Saturday morning, September 30th, until 10 a.m. Saturday, October 7th, the Tracy yard received 141 freight trains with 332 loads, 348 empty cars, total 4270, and moved 1000 tons of 132 freight trains with 3591 loads, 666 empty cars, total 4272 cars. Grand total 8527 cars."

During the same date in the Tracy yard, 465 passenger trains were handled. All these trains were handled without a single derailment or accident of any kind, and without even a drawer having been pulled out in switching. In addition to this, there has not been a moment's delay in the departure of trains in Tracy yard. This is a remarkable showing, and proves conclusively that freight is moving with regularity and the service has not suffered as a result of the strike."

MAN ARRESTED AT DEPOT.

At an early hour this morning a man giving his name as Isaac Deane was arrested at the Southern Pacific depot by Patrolman Jardinebridge on a charge of trespassing, a misdemeanor.

Deane is said to have refused to leave the company's property when ordered to do so by one of the railroad guards. It is also alleged that he interfered with one of the gardeners on the depot platform.

It was learned yesterday that Charles Owens, who was accidentally killed near Home Sunday, had dropped his last name and that his true name is Charles Owens, Debinsky. For this reason the authorities have been unable to locate any of his relatives. It is understood that Debinsky has a daughter in a convent in Colorado and Corinne, Iowa, is helping an attempt to find her. The remains are being held at Sanger until relatives can be located.

M'CORMICK COMING HERE ON NOV. 1ST

November 1st is the date set by E. C. McCormick, vice president of the Southern Pacific, for his return trip to Fresno. While in Coalinga Tuesday, McCormick informed J. P. Hixson, district passenger agent, that the party of head officials of the Espee will be in Fresno about the first of next month. During the first trip, McCormick and party did not visit Coalinga or the oil fields, so a special trip was made Tuesday.

Fay: Unless the electric needle is handled by an expert, which there are not many in this country, you cannot permanently rid the skin surface of that downy growth. A simple and effective treatment consists of applying talcum paste to the offending hair, and after two or three minutes of holding it on the skin, you can get a good grip on the hair and pull it out. It takes away the fine skin, and does not show on the face or pull off like powder. I find face powder very injurious to the complexion, as it clogs up the skin pores and causes rough, wrinkled faces.

Hixson, district passenger agent, that the party of head officials of the Espee will be in Fresno about the first of next month. During the first trip, McCormick and party did not visit Coalinga or the oil fields, so a special trip was made Tuesday.

Fay: Unless the electric needle is handled by an expert, which there are not many in this country, you cannot permanently rid the skin surface of that downy growth. A simple and effective treatment consists of applying talcum paste to the offending hair, and after two or three minutes of holding it on the skin, you can get a good grip on the hair and pull it out. It takes away the fine skin, and does not show on the face or pull off like powder. I find face powder very injurious to the complexion, as it clogs up the skin pores and causes rough, wrinkled faces.

FRATERNAL BROTHERHOOD

Ralph City Lodge No. 32 met last night with a good attendance, present and seven applications for membership were received, and one candidate was initiated. The sick benefit of S. M. Bay was read and allowed. Sisters Marham and Scott, who have been ill, were reported better. The drill team is planning a series of dances for the winter. The first dance will be held the first of November. After the business meeting the regular social dance was enjoyed.

A postal card brings full information. The investment is just about what you have been looking for.

Make your money earn six per cent.

It is to the people who want an investment and not a speculation that we are addressing these announcements.

A good investment is one that will yield a sure, safe and regular return without further effort on the part of the investor.

High-class railroad bonds, dividend-paying preferred industrial, well managed bank stocks, public service corporation bonds and selected municipal bonds are usually good investments.

In this class comes "Syndicate Sixes," the 6% Investment Certificates of the Realty Syndicate of Oakland, California.

In some respects "Syndicate Sixes" are better even than preferred industrials, because our assets consist of real estate, and our revenue is dependent chiefly upon physical value plus our corporate earning power instead of corporate earning power alone.

Strikes, legislation, panics, market manipulation, etc., affect land values but slightly, as has been amply exemplified by all past history. On the other hand, stocks frequently drop 20 or 30 points in a single day.

If you have money which you would like to invest and put to work at 6% per annum (pay-ble semi-annually by check, mailed promptly upon the day due), let us know the amount and the length of time you wish to leave it with us, and we will immediately forward particulars.

The Realty Syndicate is an old, established institution with thousands of clients, some of whom have done business with the corporation for 15 or 16 years.

Your money will be safe with us, and as a client of the corporation you will find us helpful and glad to consult with you in any of your business perplexities.

You deal directly with the principals, who are responsible, established, successful people, comprising a great institution—The Realty Syndicate.

100,000 EASTERNERS TO COME TO CALIFORNIA DURING 1915

W. B. Holland Says People West of Rockies Are Talking About Trip.

Panama-Pacific Exposition Only Side Issue for Many Settlers.

There will be at least 100,000 Easterners in California during 1915, the prediction made by W. B. Holland, the grocery merchant, who returned Tuesday from an extended trip through the Northwest, Canada, the Middle West and East. Holland and his family were gone exactly twelve weeks and during this time they traveled approximately 20,000 miles, 2000 of which were made by automobile.

Holland stated yesterday while relating some of the details of his vacationing that everywhere east of the Rocky mountains the people are discussing California and its resources. The Panama-Pacific exposition is to be held at San Francisco in 1915, he said, and that is drawing the Easterners to California, according to Holland, but there will be thousands of tourists who are only going to get a glimpse of the fair but to view the land in California are estimated to cost $1.65. Sizes 11-12 to 2 we are selling at $1.95 a pair.

MAKE SPECULATIVE PACKERS SEEK THEIR HOLES; IS T. H. LYNCH'S ADVICE TO RAISIN GROWERS

Growers By Standing Pat Have It in Their Power to Teach Shorts Memorable Lesson in the Raisin Game, Says Well Informed Grower.

Editor Republican:—Again we are called on to witness the annual attempt of the speculator to rob the raisin producer of his just due. Once more we hear that fat off ery from the East that nobody wants raisins, until per cent of the hard up growers, whom we have always with us, rushes in and offers his crop at any old price and thus breaks the market.

Not many weeks past some of the packers were freely contracting for new crop muscats at 4-3-4c, feeling for a certainty that the sweat-box market was on the eve of mounting to 5 cents.

It is an open secret that the Eastern trade was buying then at prices to justify 4-3-4 cents to the grower. Suddenly the East was flooded with telegrams by certain packers offering reduced at lesser prices with the undoubted object to create a state of war in the Eastern buyers' mind as to the stability of the market at this end and to convince him, that not to lose, the trade should withdraw from the market and wait subsequent developments.

FAVORABLE TO GROWER.

Not for years has the statistical situation been so favorable to the raisin producer if he had only enough mouth to stand up for his rights and soul a good stiff loss into the pocketbooks of the short selling gamblers. In ordinary seasons, early deliveries of the raisin crop are ready to pick on board the cars long before the trade really needs it for Thanksgiving distribution and this condition is used every year to bring out the weak grower.

On the contrary, this season of 1911, on account of the late maturing of the grapes, the consequent later picking and since picking, the slow curling weather, all of which means late delivery—plays directly in to the hands of the growers and particularly against the gambling short seller. If the grower has the sense to realize it and has the courage of his convictions.

All of the days, the seedling plants have been idly or running on part capacity, is feeding capacity for ever lost to the trade, for Thanksgiving supplies.

The trade will soon wake up to this fact and begin to scramble to get in on what capacity may be left for timely shipments.

PACKERS ARE SHORT.

It is another open secret that a number of packers are under contract to deliver October shipments, and have not bought sufficient raisins to cover their contracts and many of the raisins which they have bought cannot possibly be cured in time to enable them to deliver in.

These packers have been religiously staying in their offices for fear of betraying their predicament, fearing to excite the grower by sending out their buyers hoping to create a condition that would induce the weak, frightened grower to go to town and listen to the panicky talk of the packer and let go of his product for less than it is worth.

It is high time for the grower to realize that the raisin market is to be as strong and no stronger than it makes it. It is in our power to make the gambling shorts seek their holes.

The packers must buy raisins from those who have them ready for early and late October shipment.

KEEP AWAY FROM PACKER.

Let the grower stay at home and keep away from the packer and we shall see no need to change in conditions.

There has been a strong steady effort to get the grower to come into a state of panic. The next week we will tell the tale whether or not the growers are to be stampeded into town and hand the results of their year's work over to the gambling packer.

A continuation of these tactics on the part of the packers will finally result in arousing the indignation of the growers at large to such an extent that they will yet be induced to go through the trouble of organizing for self protection and this is something that the November short seller had better take into consideration if he doesn't wish to be walked over and plenty before he sits down to his Thanksgiving raisin pie.

XMAS MARKET UNSUPPLIED

The Christmas market is yet to be supplied all over these United States and it is up to the grower to hold values even if to do so they shall temporarily organize and let the trade know we are in a position to give the He to the speculative gamblers who are endeavoring to take a short crop away from us at less than its value.

The packer does not create the demand, the jobber does not create the demand, but when the retailer begins to inquire for his shipments to fill the consumer's demand, there will be created a condition that will stampede the packer out of his hole and the grower will then be consulted somewhat as to what his raisins are worth.

Whatever portion of this crop shall be saved will be good property anytime between now and the 1912 crop.

provided the grower stands pat, stays at home and waits for the short seller to come out of his hole, which he certainly will do to avoid a greater loss.

MAY ORGANIZE

If these speculative packers have the nerve to short the November raisin market, the only thing left to do is to organize and teach them a lesson. There are half a dozen men in the community and certain who will sacrifice their time and undertake to lead the way, if it be necessary.

As final word to the grower—sit back and wait—stay at home and keep cool and you will get your price.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED ON JAIL BUILDING

Work to Commence in April and to Be Completed in August.

The supervisors made award yesterday of the contract for the remodeling of the county jail building. When the contract is written up, it will specify that the work will not commence until April next after the rainy season, and to be completed by the first Monday in August. The award of the construction contract was on motion of Supervisor Martin and that for the steel work in the cells by Supervisor Johnson. The contractors are: Pacific Construction Company, $26,747; Finch Jail Building and Metal Company 14,387

Total $43,134

It was at the suggestion of Mr. McCarthy of the construction company that the two contractors will give bonds covering each the full sum of the contract, combining in each guarantee to county of faithful performance of the contract and securing material men on their claims.

MONTANA IN GRIP OF SEVERE SNOW STORM

POCATELLO, Idaho, Oct. 11.—Southwestern Montana is in the grip of a terrible snow storm that has cut off Butte from communication with the outside world today. Every telegraph and telephone wire into Butte has been severed, communication existing at Helena and Deer Lodge on the north, and Dillon on the south. It is reported that over two feet of snow has fallen and that all street car service was suspended and that many power circuits had been put out of commission. All traffic south of Butte are running on delayed schedules, but none has been stalled by drifts so far as known.

STREET ROW LEADS TO SUDDEN MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—After vainly trying to persuade him to cease following, J. A. Harrison, a street railway conductor, at an early hour this morning shot and killed William A. Buchman, of whom little is known.

According to Harrison's story, Buchman accosted him in a restaurant and tried to pick a quarrel and later followed him out of the street and from one longish house to another until the conductor was trying to return to a room. Finally, so Harrison said, Buchman started to attack him and seemed about to draw a revolver, whereupon the conductor used his own weapon and killed his "alleged assailant." Harrison gave himself up to the police.

SHOOTS MOTHER OF GIRL AND SUICIDES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—After making an ineffectual attempt to kill Mrs. H. M. Hall, the mother of the girl he loved, Al Clifford Van Order, 15 years old, a printer, is dead here today. According to the police, Van Order was told by the girl's parents he must cease his attentions to her. He called at the house and when Mrs. Hall answered the bell, he shot at her, the bullet grazing her side near the heart. He then shot himself, dying almost instantly. Van Order came here recently from New York.

PAL OF MURDERER CONFESES CRIME

SALT LAKE, Oct. 11.—Samuel Kirkpatrick, under arrest for the murder of C. L. Erickson last Friday, has made a confession and is telling the police, in which he declares the fatal shot was fired by his companion, Harley Brown of Terra Haute, Ind.

The statement declares that while Kirkpatrick and McWhinney were attempting to rob Sol S. Brown of Chicago, in a room in a hotel, Erickson burst into the room in answer to cries for help and was shot by McWhinney. Kirkpatrick and McWhinney have waived preliminary hearings. He has recently opened a law office in Fresno. Professor Munyon says:

"If a man or woman will be hopeful and cheerful, have no evil thoughts, no jealousy, think kindly of all the world—just have Hope—sickness will not hold his church for long. I believe in the Gospel of Hope. I have preached and practiced it to the ends of the earth. Millions have followed my lead. I believe my life work has amounted to something. I believe in the remedies which have won me my prosperity. I know they have saved untold others and names and have snatched thousands from the brink of the grave. I am proud of them."

And that I have reached the ripe age of experience and philosophy, I shall devote my money and my efforts to preaching on an even broader scale my great Gospel of Hope.

"My new health cult will embrace every good—that is—in every religion. They know that is—in every good man and woman. Its doctrines will be: Think hopefully; act hopefully, and send out hopeful messages. Its commandments will be: Love one another; tell the truth; defy customs, usages and all forms that conflict with individual rights. Each member will be imbued with this one great truth—that God never made two individuals alike, and she never will; therefore, each man stands a prince unto himself. We have been serfs too long. We have been followers instead of leaders. We have never used the strength of our mightiness.

"I want to live until every human being lifts his finger with full expectation that Divine blessings will pour into him. Few people understand the spiritual significance of this motto: There is Hope." I bear it carefully dropped from the lips of the multitude, even jokingly, rarely reverently.

If the sign of the cross were to be destroyed the next best sign would be the index finger pointing heavenward. To me it points the way to peace—peace with yourself, peace with your fellowman and peace with God."

Munyon's offices in Fresno are located in the Forsyth Building, where he gives full consultation and advice to all the sick and ailing who call.

Full explanation of Munyon's health theories, which have proved the most successful ever introduced, will be made with no obligation of any kind.

PIONEER DIES

SAN JOSE, Oct. 11.—W. L. SUMMON DE LA BARRA TO FACE THE DEPUTIES

Mexican President Upon
Carpet Over Money
Given Madero.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—Determined to know just why the Mexican government paid Gustavo Madero, a brother of the president-elect, $42,185 pesos, and what it has cost to muster out the revolutionary forces, the Chamber of Deputies tonight called upon President De la Barra for an accounting.

This is the first time in the history of the country that deputies have claimed the right to issue a summons for a president.

The deputies were discussing the electoral law when Arturo Alvarez de Vera Cruz received permission to introduce his measure. Without dissent it was adopted, 103 to 60.

It is said that the president may claim the right to answer through a cabinet officer, and in that case probably will ask Minister of Finance Ernesto Madero, who paid out the money, to represent him before the chamber.

When the money was paid Gustavo Madero several months ago, it was explained that it was to reimburse him for expenditures in the cause for the revolution.

ADJUSTER GIVEN VERDICT FOR FEES

Case Recalls Loss By Fire Destroying 1910 Raisin Pool Goods.

A jury before Judge Austin quickly returned a verdict for $20,550 as prayed for yesterday in the case of William Kelday of San Francisco against Louis Detoy, sued as trustee and agent of the Giffen-Clark-Holm raisin combination, which included also members of the Pacific Coast High Five. The suit was to recover for services rendered, including expenses on three journeys from San Francisco to Fresno, in adjusting the loss by the fire that burned down the Central Warehouse at Tuolumne and H streets on the 10th of June, 1910, and destroyed raisins under contract of the raisin pool. The claim for adjuster's fees was on the basis of one-half of 1 per cent on the insurance, $35,550, being the figure on the determined loss. The defense was that Kelday was employed on the express understanding that to accelerate settlement of the loss he would avoid an appraisal, that in point of fact no appraisal had to be made, and that no reimbursement for his services would be conceded.

On the other hand, the contention was that the appraisal made was not one coming within the meaning of the wording of the policy.

THREATENS TO FIRE BIG TRANSFER BARN

R. T. Moss, Recently Fined for Drunkenness, Makes Incendiary Threat.

Every police officer in Fresno was last night notified to arrest R. T. Moss who was recently fined $5 by City Justice Truman after pleading guilty to a charge of drunkenness. Moss is alleged to have threatened to burn down the Merchants Transfer Company on Main Street and for fear that he will carry out his plan the police were given orders to arrest him. Moss was formerly employed by the transfer company, but it is understood that he was discharged because of drunkenness. He is said to have returned to the barn last night partly under the influence of liquor, and to have demanded to be re-employed or he would fire the barn. A call was sent into police headquarters for an officer but before Patrolman Wickstrom arrived Moss had left the barn. Moss was recently lodged in jail on complaint of his daughter. She said that he spent her money for liquor.

MADERO WILL ALTER CABINET VERY LITTLE

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—Five members of the present cabinet will hold portfolios under Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and four of these will be retained in their present positions, according to an unauthorized statement made at Madero's headquarters tonight. The other three positions will depend upon the outcome of the vice-presidential contest. The cabinet places already arranged by Madero are:

Finance—Eusebio Madero,
Communications and Public Works—Manuel Bonilla.

Foreign—Rafael Hernandez.
War—General Jose Gonzales Salas.

Minister of Culture, now minister of Justice, has asked Mr. Root, but it is not yet decided to take the portfolio of foreign relations, although Madero hopes to be able to persuade Francisco De la Barra, provisional president, to take this.

A CENTURY OF PEACE

Senator Root's Suggestion for Commemoration of the Treaty of Ghent.

That all the activities of the English-speaking world be brought to a standstill for five minutes on February 17, 1915, for the peaceful celebration of a century of unbroken peace between the English-Saxon races is a striking suggestion advanced by Senator Root of New York.

The treaty of Ghent was ratified between the United States and Great Britain on February 17, 1815. Since that time there has been no war between the English-speaking peoples of the world.

Earl Grey, governor general of Canada, and R. T. Borden, who is soon to become prime minister of the dominion, were informed of the proposal by Senator A. Stewart of New York, chairman of the executive committee of the national committee for the celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of peace among the English-speaking peoples. They advised it was great proposal. To Earl Grey, who is about to return to England after seven years of service as governor-general, has been offered the chairmanship of the British committee.

Mr. Borden, whose recent successful opposition to Canadian-American reciprocity has not impaired his great friend ship for the United States, warmly approved the suggestion. Mr. Stewart said:

"In the interest of the movement for an appropriate celebration of the century of peace I urge Mr. Root on last Monday.

He is an honorary vice-chairman of the national committee, of which Theodore Roosevelt is honorary chairman, and Andrew Carnegie chairman, and he has always taken a warm interest in the movement. Mr. Root, as secretary of state, it will be remembered, did much to clear up the outstanding questions of dispute between the United States and Great Britain. Many admirable proposals have been made for the celebration, including the creation of an international park and the building of an international bridge at Niagara.

"It is Senator Root's idea that this commemoration ought to be most effectively and appropriately begun by the cessation of all human activities for a period of five minutes on February 17, 1915.

Throughout the English-speaking world this period would be devoted to prayerful contemplation of the significance of the century of peace."

FILIPINOS SATISFIED, HE SAYS

"That the Filipinos will ever have their independence, I do not believe. At any rate they will not get it in our time," remarked Joseph Stiglitz, an American who is largely interested in business in the Philippines, in the New World.

"There is not now so much of a cry among the people for independence, largely because the ministers have learned that the Filipino lower classes do not want independence." That the latter are not clamoring for independence is due to the fact that they have learned that the American government can be trusted, and that it does not proclaim one thing and mean another, as was the case under Spanish rule. More enlightened, as the result of enlarged educational facilities also, has had a great deal to do with the change of sentiment among the Filipinos.

"Many of the older citizens realize now that they have been walking the straightaway years, and that they are incapable of self-government. Perhaps the United States will give the Filipinos a larger measure of self-government than they have now, but as for independence, bring it up the islands. I do not believe that possible—just yet."—Washington Post.

SHE DIDN'T RECOGNIZE HIM

"The spirit of your departed husband wishes to speak with you," announced the medium.

"I don't believe it," cried the skeptical widow.

"Athelast! His spirit is here—will you get in with your umbrella?"

"I'd hate to go as far as that. But I'll tell you this—if he's got any spirit now, it's a leap more than ever he had before he died, and so I wouldn't recognize it anyway. Please write me the next day."—From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CRIPPLE BOY'S LONG RIDE

Having ridden a bicycle from here to Clewiston and back again, William Gossling, a one-legged boy, living at 618 East Sixteenth street, arrived in New York.

Gossling had travelled 1,474 miles, as shown by the odometer he carried. Gossling's average for each traveling day was a little more than 50 miles. He had $2.59 when he left New York and returned with 6 cents. He maintained himself by the use of postcards.

Gossling was brought up in Clewiston as a boy, and it was while there that he lost a leg in a railroad accident.

He made the trip to visit relatives and friends in the city where he was reared.

On the way he wore out two sets of tires and smashed the front wheel of his machine when he failed to take a turn. He contemplates a more extensive trip next year.

TO GET RID OF RHEUMATISM

If we suffer with Rheumatism and desire to get rid of it we must make up our minds to subject our systems to the proper course of treatment for a while. The only way to cure oneself of Rheumatism is to remove the cause—expel the irritating uric acid from the blood; every other method of treatment has proved a failure. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. This medicine goes down into the circulation, and expels every particle of the sour, inflammatory uric acid which is the one great cause of the disease. The cure can be greatly hastened with a little care and self denial by the patient. In the first place do not let anything interfere to prevent your taking S. S. S. regularly and according to directions; be guarded in your eating, because an attack of indigestion will always aggravate the symptoms of Rheumatism. Do not expose yourself to damp and inclement weather any more than is necessary. When S. S. S. has had time to rid the blood of the excess uric acid these little restrictions may be left off. This simple course has cured many thousands of cases of Rheumatism. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free. S. S. S. is sold at drug stores.

BIG INTEREST SHOWN IN NEW MAIL ROUTES

Steamship Companies Figure on Proposition to Use Canal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Either there is a deep sense of patriotism in the hearts of the shipping men of the United States and they wish to do what they may to put Old Glory back on the high seas and restore the waning prestige of American shipping, or else the proposal of the Post-Office Department to establish ocean mail routes between Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and New Orleans via the Panama canal, by paying a figure authorized by the Post Office Department, seems to hold out to them the promise of profit in building modern freight and passenger ships to take over the mail contracts. At any rate, there has been a great deal of interest shown in the proposal. Besides these, a new steamship company has been organized through the efforts of Edward N. Baker of Baltimore for the express purpose of building new, fast and modern ships to carry the mails via Panama.

ROUTINES COVERED.

The notice calling for bids was issued July 20, 1911, and bids will be received until 1:30 November 26, 1911.

For the route of March 5, 1912, is authority given in calling for proposals in calling for ocean mail service in ships of the second class on the following routes, service to begin not later than Oct. 16, 1912.

No. 7. From Seattle—with right to call at Astoria—to Panama, once every two weeks, 36 trips a year, sailing at San Francisco and alternately at San Pedro and San Diego, and from San Francisco to Panama every two weeks calling alternately at San Pedro and San Diego. Time from Seattle to Panama 18 days, and from San Francisco to Panama 10 days. Contracts for ten years. Bond required with bid $200,000.

No. 18. From New York to Colon once each week, making Savannah and Charleston every other trip. Time to Colon 6 days.

No. 19. New Orleans to Colon every week, time to Colon 4 days.

Only steamship lines may bid that are not controlled by railroad companies. That, however, bars out the Pacific Mail, which is commonly understood to be dominated by Southern Pacific interests. The Southern Pacific also has a line from New York to New Orleans.

There remain, however, a considerable number of lines which are in a position to bid, or would be if they made certain additions to their equipment.

Only one line, so far as is known, is projected especially to take advantage of the government subsidy. That is the Baker Line, incorporated with an authorized capital of $10,000,000.

The Ward Line is now heavily interested in the West Indian trade. The Insular and Bull lines both operate steamships from New York to Porto Rico. The Cuniveston Line has seven good ships plying to and from New York. The American Line, the only trans-Atlantic line flying the American flag, gets $1 a mile for carrying the mails between New York and Southampton. The Red D Line, between New York and San Juan, Curaçao and La Guira, has two 6,000-ton ships getting $1 and two 3,500-ton ships getting 67 cents a mile. The Ward line is subsidized also for $1 a mile. Its ships ply between New York and Havannah, and between New York and Vera Cruz, Mexico. The latter makes stops at Havannah and Progreso. The Red D line also carries the Porto Rican mails.

COAST COMPANIES.

Iates & Chesbrough are operating by way of Panama between New York and San Francisco, and the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company is operating by way of the Tehuantepec railway, but as soon as the canal is opened, it intends to run its ships through the canal, and it will put on a number of new 10,000-ton ships of modern construction and burning oil for fuel. This line is believed not to be contemplating entrance into the mail carrying field, considering it must despatch to carry large cargoes of mail speedier than the government requires for the mails.

California is deeply interested in the extension of the steamship business, as it has long been burdened with heavy trans-Pacific freight rates. It has large crews of grain, hay, wine, dried fruits, green fruit, oranges, lemons, raisins, olives and other products, which it will be able to ship to a considerable extent by water via the canal. The more that the steamship business is extended, the better it will seem to California, and in fact to Washington and Oregon, with parts of Nevada and Arizona.

In spite of the tremendous handicaps due to the great cost of production, the difficulty of procuring labor, the necessity of making many experiments in learning the art of successful production, the heavy freight across the continent to a market, and the losses occasioned in transit, California has built up a splendid production of fruits, both deciduous and citrus. This never could have been done had not Congress given protection in the form of a customs tax on foreign fruit. The citrus growers have practically driven all foreign oranges out of the market during the season when the home product is being marketed. The lemon men have done practically the same thing with their product west of the Mississippi River, and they actually produce 90% of all the lemons used in the United States. With an even show they could and would grow and market practically all the lemons the country could consume, and have some left for export.

As the prices brought by lemons in Germany, Russia and England are as good as can be had in New York, the time will come when California will ship lemons, which carry better than oranges, to the European markets.

But in the meantime the industry still needs the encouragement of the tariff to fully develop it.

KICK AT RATES.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Claiming to market practically all the proprietary medicines, drugs and lotions in this country, the Proprietary Association of America today complained to the Interstate Commerce Commission that the rate on the immense volume of advertising matter it ships from New York to Chicago should be 35 cents a hundred pounds instead of the 15 cents which exceeded the value of the shipments.

Why is the soda cracker to-day such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

To-day there is a soda cracker which is the recognized staple — Uneeda Biscuit.

Uneeda Biscuit are the most nutritious food made from flour and should be eaten every day by every member of the family from the youngest to the oldest.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package.

A Railroad and Factory Town

THE Santa Fe railroad is spending $1,000,000 in making Calwa a railroad town. The roundhouses now located in Fresno are to be abandoned and new ones built in Calwa.

All of the men who now make their headquarters in Fresno will be required to live in Calwa. Besides this, many manufacturers are already located and will probably locate branch factories in Calwa, and at the office or write for booklet for full information.

CLOVIS MAY PROCEED WITH INCORPORATION

Supervisors Overrule Protest By Fresno Flume and Lumber Co.

By unanimous vote yesterday the supervisors granted the petition for incorporation of the town of Clovis, and in doing so overruled the protest of the Fresno Flume and Lumber Company which objected to town incorporation on the ground that proposed which included the lumber yard, mill yard and shop in the section square town-site, with the railroad bisecting the 640 acres.

The argument was argued at length by Attorney L. L. Cory for the lumber company with A. G. Gallaher for the petition to incorporate. Under the impression that some of the members of the board did not understand the location conditions at Clovis, Supervisor Johnson moved to appoint a committee of three to visit the flume town and report on the merits of petition and protest, but no one seconded him. Supervisor Martin then made, with Huffman's second, the motion to grant the petition of 116 signers and the vote was unanimous.

Mr. Cory's argument was to effect that if the lumber company's property is included in the corporate limits it would be called upon to pay practically one half of the municipal tax, or equal that of all the petition signers put together. Besides, it would be paying taxes for fire protection when it already has that protection. Mr. Cory also asserted that within the last six months the company had 52 acres in one of the quarters of the section townsite for the tax revenue Clovis would not be favorable to incorporation. Another argument offered was that it would be manifestly unjust and unfair to include lumber yard and mill property when they are removed as far as they

OLD-TIME REMEDY DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair;
Dandruff Quickly
Removed.

From time immemorial, sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair, for curing dandruff and failing hair, and for making the hair grow.

In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays, almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, usually compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put out an ideal remedy of this sort, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorized druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is turning gray or coming out, don't delay, but get a bottle of this remedy today, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Instant Relief for Sore Feet

Sore Feet, Tender Feet and Swollen Feet Cured Every Time. TIZ Makes Sore Feet Well, No Matter What Ails Them.

Policemen all over the world use TIZ. Policemen stand on their feet all day, and know what sore, tender, sweaty, swollen feet really mean. They use TIZ because TIZ cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. Read what this policeman has to say: "I was surprised and delighted with TIZ for tender feet. I hardly know how to thank you enough for it. It's superior to powders or plasters. I can keep my feet in perfect condition. Believe in my earnest gratitude for TIZ. I am a policeman and keep on my feet all day." —Emry Harral, Austin, Texas.

You never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold.

TIZ is not a poultice. Poultices and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous excretions which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25¢ per box, or it will be sent you direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

GREAT INTEREST IN MISS BOOTH LECTURE

Salvation Army Commander Given Great Reception in Kansas City.

Much interest is being taken in the appearance here on October 19th of Miss Eva Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States. She will speak at the Barton Opera House on "The Grand March Past." Dr. Pitner of the First M. E. Church will introduce her. Writing of her reception in Kansas City, when she began her tour, Colonel George French says:

"The initial Sunday of the Commander's extensive continental campaign will undoubtedly go down in local history as a genuine red letter day, and to our comrades of Kansas City, from Lieut.-Colonel Cousens, the Provincial Officer, and Major Wm. Harris, the divisional officer, down among the horsets. Legions of friends, family believers in and staunch supporters of the cause of which our talented commander is the honored head as far as the United States is concerned, joined with each other in contributing their quota to the brilliant success of this eventful day. Millionaires, bankers, doctors of law, philosophy, medicine and theology, society leaders, together with prominent people in nearly every walk of professional and patriotic life, have rubbed shoulders with the poor and unlettered, their eyes alike filled with tears as well as their hearts rejoicing over the presence and power of God as manifested through the inspiring and eloquent utterances of the city's distinguished guest, Miss Booth. The day can truly be characterized as a Salvation Army day in every sense of the word. Almost every conceivable avenue of opportunity was ours. The commander's own efforts were Herculean, her zeal to assist, prompting her to take a good lion's share of the day's fighting."

"Two large public gatherings, each with audiences overwhelming, impossible to draw from our leader her best, and the manner in which compliance has sustained her gives cause for much gratitude."

"The local troops, together with the entire visiting staff, stood nobly by, rendering valiant service. Commander Booth's efforts have ably seconded those of the commander-in-chief and are proving a source of strong support to our leader. The prophet's idea has been heard and the supplement's year of repentance brushed away."

"The spiritual tide is rising, and prospects are splendid for a grand finale at Monday night's gathering for soldiers. Faith is strong for the remainder of the campaign. Apart from a little weariness consequent upon the heavy strain, the commander is in excellent health and spirits."

CARNIVAL QUEEN, QUEEN OF HOME

LINDSAY, Oct. 11.—Miss Virginia McCormick, carnival queen last October, was married Saturday to Ernest L. Coolidge, a civil engineer. The ceremony was performed in the M. E. church by Rev. C. D. Hicks.

The bride was given away by her father and was attended by four bridesmaids who, with the maid of honor, carried lovely bouquets of bride's-maid's roses and ferns.

Miss Sophy played the wedding march and a choir of eleven sang the bridal chorus. Mrs. Carnegie Prior played several beautiful violin numbers.

WHEATVILLE GROCER CLEARED OF BATTERY

Took Jury But Few Minutes to Find D. C. Francis Not Guilty.

It took a jury but a few minutes yesterday in Justice Graham's court to find D. C. Francis and wife not guilty on the charge of battery which was leveled against them by E. Await of this city. The jury deliberated but a few minutes, and only three ballots were taken. The case was probably one of the hardest fought that has ever been tried in the lower court. District Attorney Denver Church and Attorney Cosgrove represented the prosecution while Attorney M. B. Harris appeared for the defendants. Francis is a well-known Wheatville grocer.

The trouble occurred last August at the Francis home in Wheatville when Mr. and Mrs. Await and a party of friends called at the Francis home to visit Mrs. George Francis, former wife of the son of the defendants. The Francis family is alleged to have resented the intrusion by the visitors and in the affray which followed, Mrs. Await was pushed from the front porch and she broke her arm. George Francis is alleged to have attacked Await with a revolver and to have discharged the revolver. The son has been held to answer to the Superior Court on this charge. The part that the father played in the fight is that he pulled Await off his son and was alleged to have struck him over the head with a board. As a result of the affray the son was sued by his young wife for a divorce and the request was recently granted in the Superior Court. Mr. and Mrs. George Francis were married but two months.

Let Electricity Help You Irrigate

USING an electric motor to operate a pump is the cheapest and best way to irrigate. It is cheaper and far more convenient than any other power. It is always ready for immediate use and any one can use it. Neither experience nor mechanical skill are necessary.

Besides having the power to operate the pump, it can be used for many other purposes, such as turning a grinder, or separator, for lighting and cooking purposes and for ironing, operating sewing machine, etc.

2 Proofs Of The Value Of The "Land of Kerman"

1.—Products Won First Prize At The Fair
2.—Hundreds of Profitable Farms On The Tract

There are lots of other reasons why the "Land of Kerman" is the choice of agricultural land of Fresno County, but these two are the two that stand out strongest at first glance. They are two proofs of what may be expected from the "Land of Kerman," what the investor may look forward to with assurance. The exhibit at the Fresno Fair was judged by an impartial committee and was awarded first prize on the merits of the products alone. This shows what the land is capable of. The other proof of the marvelous productivity of the "Land of Kerman" we can demonstrate just as forcefully. There are hundreds of families living on farms in the "Land of Kerman," and not only making a good living, but paying for their places. They are well started on the road to prosperity, an easy road in the "Land of Kerman."

MISSING YOUTHS

One Inquiry Is For An Inmate of Eighteen Years Ago In Orphanage.

Mrs. Ella Anderson, of 317 Twenty-third street, Rock Island, has written to the county orphanage authorities to ascertain the whereabouts of a grandson, Walter Stevenson. She writes that the Stevenson boy came to California 17 or 18 years ago, lived together for a time, lost sight of the boy was placed in the orphanage here by the father. This information she says she had from the son-in-law.

The latter has disappeared and has not been heard from since his wife died shortly after his going back east. The boy would be now about 20 years of age. The grandmother would like information concerning him, and says he has a disfigured right hand finger caused by an injury in being caught in a cog-wheel. Whether a Walter Stevenson was an inmate of the orphanage at the time cannot not be verified because the records were destroyed by fire.

Mrs. C. F. Emerson of Ocean Park, Cal., has made appeal to the sheriff for information concerning Roscoe C. Emerson, also known as Bob Harrison. His mother being ill grieves over his absence and offers to send the money if he will return home. The youth is 16 years of age but looks older. He left Los Angeles on the 5th of last month with another boy, named Edgar Hughes. Both are dance-hall entertainers and Emerson being a good skater exhibited himself here last winter at Recreation Park.

WILL BE LENIENT

Probation Officer Sessions States His Policy in Cases of Juveniles.

"The police has criticised me for recommending parole releases in several cases of juveniles," remarked yesterday County Probation Officer Sessions. "I want to say that my policy as county probation officer will be that where a boy has a good record in school and in his neighborhood, has not gradually worked up to a big crime through a series of small ones, and is in court for his first offense, I will give him the opportunity to be placed where he can be watched and develop for good.

"In the case of the youth who has been brought up amidst criminal surroundings or environments, and whose tendencies are criminal, I take it to be a waste of time to try to educate him to goodness and he must take the consequences of his acts."

Ben Renna and Tony Ferencis were granted yesterday a second postponement until tomorrow to enter their pleas before the juvenile court on the charge of encouraging their sons to commit larceny. It is likely that they will plead guilty. The case is the first of its kind in this county.

Judge Austin as the juvenile court judge committed Marino Suglian, aged 16, to the parental school to be kept there under surveillance until the further orders of the court. The charge against him was robbery in holding up a buckster at the point of a revolver and taking five cents from him. Suglian was masked at the time. Probationary Officer Sessions reported that Suglian had previously enjoyed an excellent reputation and the robbery act was "the freak notion of a boy."

WOLF ESTATE GOES TO SIX CHILDREN

Family Home Is Ordered Maintained Until the Two Youngest Are of Age.

The will of Jacob Wolf, who died on the 4th last, leaving an estate which according to his son Peter is valued at $12,500 and consists of real estate, was filed for probate yesterday. It is dated March 8, 1910, and leaves all to six children. The daughter, Annie, has declined to act as executrix.

The children will share alike, but the testator directs that certain property be sold and the proceeds be invested until the daughter, Josephine, and son, Jacob, come of age, then to be supported, maintained and educated by the estate. In point of fact the daughter is of age, though the son is only 16 years of age.

The daughter Annie is given a home under the paternal roof, if she desires to live there, and this home at 2202 Thomas avenue is ordered to be maintained during the minority of the two youngest children to whom the inheritance money is also bequeathed.

In the sale of any of the properties the executors are enjoined to carry out any pending contracts. The executors are forbidden to make any charges for administering save as to actual court expenses.

UNIVERSAL SECTION 5
WELL IN FIRST SAND

COALINGA STORAGE IS REDUCED 80,000 BBLS.

Heavy Gas Pressure Showing; To Start 2 New Wells on Section 20.

Shipments for September
Fall Below Those for Month of August.

LOST HILLS, Oct. 11.—The Universal Oil Company's drill on the west half of section 5, 27-21 has entered the first sand at about 1400 feet, but whether or not the top sand will be tested in this well depends on the results obtained by the Esperanza on section 4, 27-21. The Universal well on section 5 is showing a heavy gas pressure and the indications are for a good well. Work will be suspended to cement off the water, after which, in case the Esperanza does not show oil in commercial quantities, the well will be carried to the second sand, which has been found highly productive.

The Esperanza company has erected a 10,000 barrel steel tank for storage and is also erecting houses for permanent residence of employees. Some of these buildings will be of concrete.

The Standard Oil Company is putting up good buildings on its property, indicating the company has great faith in its Lost Hills property.

It is stated that the Universal is about to start two more rigs on section 20, 26-21 and two more on section 18. The well on the southwest quarter of section 20 is now being cemented.

The Evinger well on section 28, 26-21 is showing a heavy gas pressure, the drill having just entered the blue shale formation which lies over the oil sand as found in other wells.

The Lost Hills Capitol Oil Company, which has forty acres in the southeast quarter of section 28, 26-21, has consummated arrangements for drilling and work will be started at once.

ATTENTION!
Attention Knights of Columbus.
Discovery Day celebration to be held at Zapp's Park Thursday evening, October 12th, will be indefinitely postponed on account of the death of Brother Stanley Condon.

Let Us Dress You

BITTEL'S

If you want to be well dressed, and what man does not, you must wear a suit that not only fits you perfectly in every way, but it must be one that is suitable for you. It may be in style and of the new patterns or it may be in an older pattern. The main thing to be considered is the fit.

It is in fitting our patrons that we excel. Our clothes are made by one of the most successful firms in the United States, one that employs tailors who are experts. The suits are made to allow for certain alterations that make them equal to any specially made suit. We have been fitting these ready made suits to many men accustomed to wearing tailored suits and they have proven to have every virtue of the made-to-measure suits and cost less. They wear well, too, and retain their shape.

We have a lot of the latest overcoats in patterns and styles that you will like and those new sweaters that are so popular. Our stock of furnishings is so extensive that you can find exactly what suits you.

DIRECTORS CHOSEN BY PLUTO COMPANY

COALINGA, Oct. 11.—The adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Pluto Oil Company was held in the office of the company here Monday night. The following directors were elected: H. S. Davis, T. J. Whaley, C. G. Hanford, Charles Hendrick and W. H. Danne. The directors organized by electing Davis president, Whaley vice-president and Hanford, secretary.

The report of the superintendent showed that the Pluto well is 2765-foot deep and is cemented off in 3½-inch casing. The bit has gone into what is believed to be a productive oil sand and the casing pulled up and cemented off below it. Drilling will be resumed immediately.

PUGET SOUND ARMY POST MAY USE OIL

TACOMA, Oct. 11.—If the plans of the quartermaster's department of the Puget Sound Artillery are carried out, the use of coal at the forts and on the government steamships will be discontinued and California oil substituted. Plans and specifications have been prepared for converting several steamers in the quartermaster's department into oil burners, as well as the use of oil at the power plants of the forts.

One effect will be to reduce the shipments of Pocahontas coal in foreign bottoms from Virginia to the Pacific coast, against which the coast representatives have long protested to Congress.

SYNDICATE CO. HAS 28 FEET OF SAND

COALINGA, Oct. 11.—The Coalings Syndicate Oil Company has twenty-eight feet of oil sand in its well No. 5A. The oil stands within 600 feet of the top of the hole. The well was drilled into this sand, dry, and it looks to be good for a splendid producer, even if this is the only sand tapped. The sand was reached at 276 feet with 8½-inch casing.

The No. 5A is down over 2100 feet in 10½-inch casing. This casing will be landed at about 2400 feet. The water will be shut off at 2600 feet, with 8½-inch casing.

TURNER NO. 1 WELL IS NOW PRODUCING

COALINGA, Oct. 11.—The Turner No. 1 well, which has given trouble ever since it was drilled into the sand, has been put on the pump, and showed a production of about 250 barrels in 24 hours. The well was put on the pump after the casing had been split. The well was finished up at 3400 feet, but no regular production could be secured on account of sand trouble. The splitting of the casing allowed the oil to come in.

"Ed" Howe, author of "The Life, Death and Obscure History of George Coulter," in The American Magazine for October, is one of the distinctively American characters who crop up every little while, like Artemus Ward, Mark Twain or Lincoln. He was long famous as the editor and owner of the Atchison, Kansas, Globe, and gathered himself, himself, diligently stopping people on the main street of the town and asking "What d' you know?"

From the answers he made up columns of local history, pungent, intimate and sharp as the cracking of a whip. His editorial paragraphs are quoted wherever newspapers use the English language.

LAVING A SUPERSTITION

Scientists are not the only ones who occasionally lay the ghost of an ancient superstition.

Bill Bicks, an unlettered but garrulous authority on all subjects, was discussing with some old cronies in the post office of a North Missouri town, the best time to plant potatoes. One old fellow maintained that Good Friday is the right time.

"Now I tell you boys," said Bill positively, "there ain't nothing in this Good Friday superstition. I used to think I couldn't raise potatoes unless I planted them on Good Friday. But I remember one year Good Friday came on Sunday, so I had to plant the next day, and I raised as fine potatoes as you ever saw!"—in Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—New York-Brooklyn game postponed, rain.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Although the first game of the city title will be fought two days hence and the world series start but a couple of days later, few big wagers have been recorded in sporting centers of Chicago. Never before in the history of past season struggles for base ball supremacy has the betting been so light. This condition is not thought to be due to a lack of interest by the fans, however, but rather because many who bet a chance are undecided on which to bet in the two series, in both of which the contending teams are considered so evenly matched.

Few offers to bet on either series have been heard on the floor of the Chicago Board of Trade. Those bets which have been made on the outcome of the "Cub-White Sox" conflict have been at even money.

GATES' GIANTS

(By M. H. GATES) If the directors of the City League refuse to allow Del Traeger to participate in the post-season series, which player will horizonte bar? (When Snodgrass comes to bat, watch the Giant swing.)

If Earl Preston is continually crabbing at the umpire, is chrysanthemum? (Has the chamber-maid the flower beds?)

Of course, everyone knows that old Dad Reuter, the crack left fielder of the Betties, works for one of the big grocery firms as a side line to his profession as a baseball player and also that Reuter has a very mean disposition. Well, what I want to get is: "If Dad has trouble with his boss would graphite? (That has been going the rounds for some time.)

O'Rourke's Error In Third Round Loses Game

Weaver Poles Two Base Hit and Fanning Gets Home Run; Seals Win.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 11.—Sacramento's only error, contributed by O'Rourke, came in the third inning, giving Vitt a life on first and paving the way for his score on Weaver's double. This run was San Francisco's only unearned run and enabled the visitors to win by a score of 3 to 2. Fanning's home run in the third and bunched hits and a sacrifice fly gave the Seals their other two tallies. The locals were unable to bunch hits off Fanning in more than two innings, making scoring Sacramento's only runs in the first and eighth. Score:

AMERICAN LEAGUERS FINISH GRANDEST SEASON

All Teams But One Chalked Up Cash on Right Side of the Ledger.

(By B. B. Johnson, President of the American League.)

The close of the American League season today marks the finish of the best and grandest year this organization has known. From the financial standpoint the season has been a huge success for each of the eight clubs. Not this alone contributed to the history-making year, however, for the opening of new parks, the development of a number of young stars in the playing ranks, and lastly the allowing of Sundry and in Cleveland were important factors.

The race itself naturally developed a few surprises and disappointments. The victory of the Philadelphia Athletics under Shantz is almost to be expected. Shantz built up his team to this stage that even exceeded his 1910 winning, but nevertheless the staff defense of the Tigers for the greater part of this year made the fight far from a one-sided affair. A victory such as I anticipate in the world's series for the Athletics will be the crowning achievement for the American League.

The new Cleveland park, which had been opened the fall previous, along with the brilliant work of the team under the guidance of George Stovall, went far to stimulate interest in that city.

DRAFTING METHODS ARE NOT LIKED ON COAST

Walt Kuhn Cannot Go East Next Season Because of Unfairness.

One of the first big fights that the coasters will start will be against the drafting evil and the right of the major leagues to take any player they like without giving the class A leagues a chance in him, says Bert Lavery in the Oakland Tribune.

As the parks are now carried on by the major leagues they have the right to go into the most minute of leagues and grab players. Every team in the majors has scouts out and if a player comes good, even if he is only a boy, he is grabbed up.

Then the enders turn him back to some minor league for development and if he shows the class, is grabbed up by the majors.

Well and good for this development of a player, but after the minor has developed him, paid his salary and made him fit for fast company, he is lost to the minors and the minors get nothing in return for him.

Then again the majors will not turn over any of these promising recruits without that clause that they may have the right to certain players at the end of the season.

RANK RULES BY COMMISSION.

The Pacific Coast League has suffered time and again in the hands of the majors, and while the National Commission has promised protection, such a thing is never heard in the mouths of the majors with the minors.

Oakland is a shining example of what little fair deal the minors get from the majors. Harry Alvy is loaned to Oakland and so is Gregory, with the understanding that the majors have a claim on them.

Manager Wolverton develops these two players and just when they become of use to the club along the border come and grab them, or if they don't take these players, the St. Louis club will take Clyde Wares.

After two years of painstaking labor Manager Wolverton makes a change of Clyde Wares and builds up an outfit that is strong until then to get players to make that team even stronger he must sacrifice his best players.

San Francisco is in the same way. President Ewing takes Buck Weaver, a recent recruit, who has nothing to recommend him but the making and after patience and consideration Weaver is shown the five points of the game and is becoming of some use to the San Francisco team. Along comes Charlie Comiskey with an optional agreement in his inside pocket and takes away Weaver.

Managers Wolverton and Ewing are willing to go out and spend money and buy players to fill these vacancies. Once, all the great players have been grabbed by the majors and if the Seals or other want talent they must buy what the majors have for sale.

Again, well and good, if the majors sell for a reasonable price, but they want anywhere from $1500 to $2000 for a player and if the minors should buy one of these high priced men they could keep him but for a reason, for along would come some sort of a draft and the minors get $1000 for the player.

NO RESPECT FOR RULING.

At the head of baseball is the National Commission, composed of the president of the National League, the president of the American League and the president of the Cincinnati club. With these three men controlling baseball, what chance have the minors in baseball matters?

Here is but a shining example of the utter disregard of all that is fair to the minors. Several men jump contracts in the American League and play outlaw baseball. These men are reinstated and are allowed to play ball again.

In the stress of the war between the Coast League and the California outlaw League, Bill Morrissey jumped the San Francisco team owing that team money. He sneaked away in the dark of the night and played with the outlaws. The Pacific Coast League demanded his suspension and a fine. He was suspended and fined $100.

Then somebody observed that Morrissey had a good shortstop and Cincinnati being in need of a shortstop, had the commission lift that suspension and Bill became a member of the Cincinnati club.

Terry McNamee was another man who jumped a contract but nobody wanted him and he was left out of baseball for over a year. Then Morrissey had him reinstated and he was permitted to play ball, but only with the Coast League.

Not being fast enough for the Constitution, Terry was turned adrift, but was offered a chance to play in the minors. Now, said this National Commission, now Terry again becomes an outlaw.

In all violation of the laws of the land, the National Commission says Terry McNamee cannot earn his living except in the manner after 1910. In the Coast League does not want him to continue play anywhere else, so that is his fate.

OVERRIDE THE ASSOCIATION.

Last year, in all that is a new or bad mark, Gus Hethling, now of the Cleveland team, violated the rules of the Coast League which says a man can not join two leagues in one season after a certain date.

Hethling was turned to Spokane and signed a contract with them and then played with Portland.

For this Portland was fined $100 by the National Association and the games he took part in were thrown out of the record.

Walter McDonald then appealed to the National Commission, and they, without warrant of law or without trial, overruled the National Association, though the rules of baseball distinctly say that they have no right to interfere with rules governing the players of the minor league when the former take place within the territory of the said minor league.

PLAYERS DENIED WORK.

Another shining example is the Johnsons of Gary. Herrmann, Ben Johnson and Lynch is seen in the case at trial. Rubin, catcher of the Portland team, when the California League was banished into control of the "protection," certain players were reinstated with the understanding that they must work three years in the Coast League before being permitted to play in any other league.

"Red" Kuhn joined Indianapolis to play with Fresno, and was later signed by Portland. Cleveland then drafted him and he would get a chance in the big league with a better salary.

This unfair National Commission denies him the constitutional right to work where he wants to and for the salary he wants to instead he might serve his sentence in the minor leagues for the salary and time they want him to. Isn't that unfair?

Mrs. Van Nostrand's Night of Triumph

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

For six long weeks Mrs. Van Nostrand had given her days to the servant question and her nights to disturbed dreams through which the "applicants" of her waking hours stalked, a solid and stolid phalanx. In the beginning she had tried to count those who presented themselves in response to the glaring advertisements her husband had inserted in several newspapers; but she soon abandoned this as an unnecessary addition to the severe mental strain of the experience. German, Swedish, Norwegian, Irish, French, and African maids called, surveyed appraisingly her charming little apartment, listened coldly to her enthusiastic recital of the simple joys and home comforts awaiting "the right person," and then, even more appraisingly, disappeared.

It was at this point in the tragedy that Mrs. Van Nostrand confided to her friend Mrs. Brown, over the telephone wire, a deep satisfaction in having kept no record of the number she had personally interviewed. "For if I knew," she explained, sadly, "I should certainly have to tell some one. And no one is in this wide, wide world, except perhaps Jack, who could ever believe me!"

"Humph!" said Mrs. Brown, distinctly. "I would so would every woman who has tried to find a general housekeeper this year. American women are now divided into two classes," she continued, warming to her subject and bracing her elbow comfortably on the top of the telephone. "Those who have servants, and those who are trying to find them. You'll know the first by their apprehension, the second by their agony. Over the first the sword is hanging; over the second it is not even doing that!" Her fat, comfortable chuckle came to Mrs. Van Nostrand's ears like a taunting flout from some modern witch's Sabbath.

"But never mind," she added, as if she had received an encore, "there is one depth you haven't reached. You don't know yet what it is to have one of them come, stay three months, win your affections, realize all your fondest ideals, make herself absolutely indispensable, and then leave because she had suddenly decided to 'specialize' and work exclusively for 'de four hundred'! When that happens you will have touched the bottom of the deepest abyss known to the American homemaker. Telephone me then—and we'll take a little trip to Lakewood."

Mrs. Van Nostrand hung up the receiver with a pucker'd smile on her pretty, careworn face. It occurred to her, as it had done several times before, that dear Mrs. Brown, while an admirable woman in many ways, had a humor that allied her to Nero. She expressed this lowly appreciation to Mr. Van Nostrand in the evening, over the skimpy dinner they were eating in a restaurant, with the one merit that it was near their apartment. The lady Jack designated as the "umptieth cook" had left abruptly that morning, owing to some ruffing jar with the janitor.

"That woman loves horrors," he returned, gloomily, referring to Mrs. Brown. "If there's anything worse coming than what we're getting, I—for one—don't want to know it beforehand. But there can't be. That's dimly comforting. Besides, if we ever do get a good servant, we'll have her hypnotized first, and then we'll put her on a leash the exact width of the flat."

Heartened by this reflection, he resumed his dinner. His wife smiled wanly. Never until then had she fully realized her husband's limitations and the disillusioning possibilities of matrimony. To have Mrs. Brown jest airy over one's misfortunes was annoying. To have Jack do it was a vital crisis in life. In that supreme moment she felt herself alone and at bay against the world.

When human souls are taxed beyond strength help comes from some source, call it what we will. The next day a young Danish woman came within Mrs. Van Nostrand's field of vision. She asked several respectful and intelligent questions, she furnished admirable references, she agreed to come to the Van Nostrands, and she came. All these things were new and strange in the experience of the unhappy house-wife, who did not in the least expect her and who waited, for two days after her arrival, in breathless expectation of her prompt departure. She did not go. She remained; she did her work with surprising ease, and seemed to have an unconsciousness of her peerless worth that was uncanny. She also confided to Mrs. Van Nostrand that she desired to be called Hedwig, instead of her real name, which was Anna, explaining that she thought it less "common"; and she asked permission to change the bows on her cap, and expressed a preference for Wednesday instead of Thursday "out." These were distinctly encouraging incidents, marking a progress never reached before, and certainly justifying some hope that she intended to remain a week or two; but her mistress guardedly refrained from taking them seriously. She also resolutely diverted Jack's gaze from the rainbow of promise on which he gazed with dazzling delight, and she met Mrs. Brown's inquiries with non-committal replies that aroused the generous solicitude of that lady.

"You are not going to let this warp your nature, are you?" asked Mrs. Brown, anxiously. "Sometimes it does, you know. I've known noble women whose characters were ruined by it... Meet it as a test, dear—as a source of development and all that. Make the servants stepping stones toward higher things!"

Mrs. Van Nostrand expressed an immediate and lively willingness to make the servants stepping stones, but conceded that she was a little vague as to the higher things.

"I've had my aspirations, like other women," she sighed, "but I'm reduced now to a very matter-of-fact and practical plane. If I can persuade some servant to live with me and do my work until we give up this apartment in May life need offer me nothing more."

Hedwig sought her a little later and turned on her a radiant blithe face.

"I just clean all de silver," she observed, affably. "You got nice silver an' dishes. Wen we give little dinner-parties we make de table look fine. Wen you going to have fren's dine wit' you? I like to get on little dinners!"

Mrs. Van Nostrand felt her being leap, as Danae's may have when the shower of gold began; but she was a woman of character, and it showed now. She heard herself speaking with entire calmness. "Little dinners," long dreamed of in the past, had never taken a more tangible shape than dreams since her marriage four months ago.

"We will have no one until Saturday evening," she said, placidly. "Then we will have only two guests, so you may get up a nice little dinner for four. That will not interfere with your routine work or the general sweeping and cleaning of Friday."

When she returned to her library she sat down to write her first dinner invitation, her chest swelling with a sense of the greatness of the moment. The note showed however, the stern discipline of past months. Like all of Mrs. Van Nostrand's recent expressions, it was guarded:

"DEAR EDITH.—Do you and Herbert love us enough to dine with us very informally Saturday evening at half-past seven o'clock, and let us try a new cook on you if she is still with us and strong enough to work? If she is not, we will dine at The Imperial.

"Affectionately yours,
"HENRIETTA VAN NOSTRAND."

The next twenty-four hours brought the reassuring information that the devotion of Edith and her husband was equal to the venture. Mrs. Van Nostrand read their note at the table with a satisfied

"Yes, she does very well," she said, condescendingly, "but, like all the rest of them, she needs constant watching—and a great deal of training!"

The "little dinner" was the first of many, for Mrs. Van Nostrand promptly adapted herself to her new position as possessor of a chef, and gave two or three dinners for four and six guests every week. She discovered a stout and capable German woman who was willing to help on such occasions for a small compensation, and as the winter passed the fame of Hedwig's cooking and the Van Nostrand dinners grew apace. Jack, who was the son of a famous editor, drew into his home many distinguished artists and men of letters who had known Hedwig's little dinner. Her acquaintance in New York was still limited, but as a girl in her Western home she had been a beauty and a belle; and in Paris and London, where she had been educated, she had friends in such society as Hedwig could barely picture in her dreams. It was a proof of the degradation to which the servant problem reduces a woman that for a wild moment some revelation of this social glory was on Henrietta Van Nostrand's lips. She experienced a strong desire to mention casually to this general house-worker the names of some of her titled intimates. But she was a gentlewoman and the low-lived moment passed. She turned to her desk with decision.

"Here is the menu for dinner, Hedwig," she said, quietly. "There will be no one here except my husband and myself." And Hedwig, feeling for once the superior force of a strong mentality, removed her plump figure languorously from the jamb of the door and sought the retirement of her kitchen.

It was at this very hour that Fate directed the footsteps of Mrs. Brown toward the Van Nostrand home. To her the young homemaker confided this most recent chapter in her domestic experience.

"You know," she ended, despatchingly, "she actually looks down on Jack and me because we're not in 'de four hundred'! It's too utterly absurd, but it's quite true."

Mrs. Brown surveyed her with deep sympathy.

"Of course," she corroborated. "And I'm sorry for you, my dear—but it's the beginning of the end. They're all snobs, and the praise you have been giving her has helped to ruin her. She feels now that she is good enough for 'society.' She wants to be a waitress or a parlor maid in some well-known family, and she will. I warned you. I told

"Of course you won't desert me until they have gone?" she asked, anxiously. With a look of deep injury at the mere suspicion, Hedwig stoutly asserted that she would not, and Mrs. Van Nostrand sent a cable as hospitably worded as her purse and cable rates permitted.

The Celtic arrived, and so did "Flossie" and Mary Seymour—the former a typical English girl, tall, pink-cheeked, fair-haired, wholesome, and athletic; the latter a matter-of-fact and middle-aged Englishwoman whose complexion had "gone off a bit," and whose hair was relentlessly twisted into the undulating British bun. Mrs. Van Nostrand conducted them with pride to her tiny but exquisite spare bedroom and listened with sympathy to their announcement that that very day they desired to see the Stock Exchange, the elevated tram system, Mr. Vanderbilt's private gallery, "for which we've invitations, dear," the shops on Broadway, Brooklyn Bridge and the Central Park. "And you're to lunch with us at the place they call Sherry's, my dear. Not that we doubt your cook, but we want to try her," remarked the older woman, with true British candor.

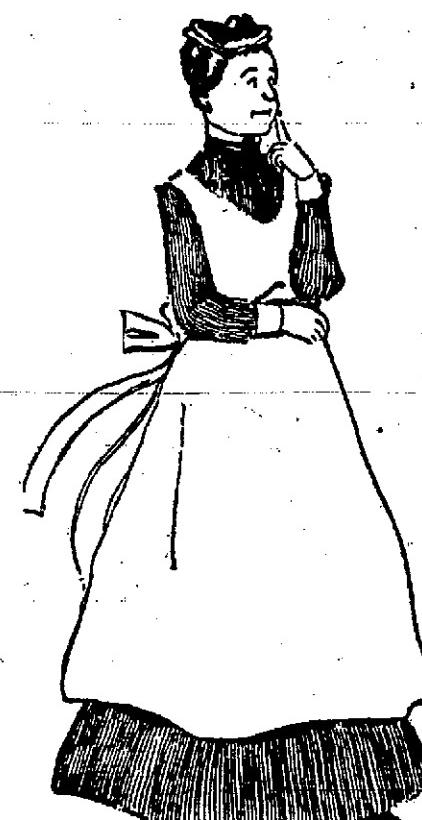

After the exertions of the day, however, they were glad to dine quietly at home that evening, and Mrs. Van Nostrand prepared for her eight o'clock dinner with no apprehension. Hedwig was in good humor and looked very wholesome in her snowy cap and apron. It was Mr. Van Nostrand who nearly precipitated a crisis during the second course.

"What did you think of the Stock Exchange, Lady Mary?" he asked, casually; and as the Englishwoman replied Mrs. Van Nostrand, who had been observing with natural pride her guests' prompt appreciation of her husband, heard a dull click and saw one of her best pieces of cut glass fall from Hedwig's nerveless hand. The maid flushed deeply as she bent to recover it, and her service during the remainder of the evening was of the faultless kind to which she had accustomed them. But when it casually developed over the dessert, due to some remark of Lady Mary's, that "Flossie" was not only the youngest, but the best beloved daughter of his Grace the Duke of Shropshire, the revelation was too much for the simple soul of the Van Nostrands' servant. She went from the room with almost a stagger that made Mrs. Van Nostrand follow her progress with anxious eyes. Then suddenly grasping the explanation, Hedwig's mistress permitted herself the luxury of a swift inward chuckle.

Late that evening she sought her handmaiden with instructions concerning breakfast, and found her in the kitchen surrounded by several awe-struck servants from other apartments in the building. These words were hanging on the air as Mrs. Van Nostrand walked-in-on-the-impressed group:

"I knew da minute I saw dose-two." Hedwig was saying solemnly, "wot I was up against—ladies—real ladies; not de kind here in America. But titled ladies wit de best blood of Europe in deh weins!"

Hedwig rose as she entered, and received with abject deference and humility the new instructions her mistress pleasantly gave her. Mrs. Van Nostrand's smile was very cordial as she returned to her guests.

"I'd Like to Work for a Nice Family—in Society."

you it would be the next step. Better get ready for Lakewood. I give her a month more at the longest!

Mrs. Brown was no Cassandra. As the days passed Hedwig grew restless and dissatisfied. She did her work apparently from force of habit, but half heartedly; and she entertained numerous cousins in the kitchen, who, she afterwards proudly explained, were butlers and coachmen in various families of high society.

"I can get a place in some nice family any time I want," she said one day. "My brudder-in-law, he can get it for me." Then she added, kindly, "But I don't like to leave you, Mrs. Van Nostrand; you bin very kind, an' I like dis place."

Mrs. Van Nostrand turned to her impulsively.

"They stay in Heaven's name," she said, desperately. "Try to realize when you are well off, Hedwig. Mr. Van Nostrand and I both like you and are willing to do anything we can to make you contented and happy. We have never spoken an unkind word to you. We have raised your wages twice in three months. We give you a great deal of time to yourself, as you know. We have the laundry work done for you. We will pay your wages while we are away this summer. What more in reason can you ask?"

Hedwig surveyed her with affectionate approval.

"You bin very kind," she conceded, "but—I like to work in a nice family!" After which rejoinder there seemed done for the daughter of the Right Reverend Henry Thurston.

Three days later Mrs. Van Nostrand received a cable from an English friend.

"Flossie and I sail Celtic June 18," it read. "Can you put us up?"

MARY SEYMOUR."

For the first time in many days Mrs. Van Nostrand broke into song. There was real happiness in this prospective visit of an old schoolmate and another close friend, and it was especially fortunate that they were coming so soon—before Hedwig left! They would not stay long; they were "globe trotters," and probably prepared to exhaust all New York's attractions in two or three days—but, returning again to brighter reflections, Mrs. Van Nostrand decided that it was very sweet to have them. She sought Hedwig at once, and explained that two English friends would arrive within a fortnight and be with her for several days.

She was in a fair way to spoil him, at first smile, and the grim reflection that possibly Edith and Herbert were fond of dining at The Imperial.

"Mr. and Mrs. Verbeck are coming to dinner Saturday, Hedwig," she then said, blithely, "and we must do our best."

Hedwig turned to her with a sudden alert interest she had never shown before.

"Verbeck?" she repeated, quickly. "Is dat de millionaire what lives on Sixty-eighth Street?"

"Oh no," replied Mrs. Van Nostrand, carelessly; "quite another family, I think."

The face of Hedwig fell. She walked out of the room with a flagging step, her inert hand holding the tray at a dangerously acute angle. Mrs. Van Nostrand looked at her husband with a puzzled frown.

"Wasn't that odd?" she remarked. "She really seemed disappointed. Perhaps she was once in service with the Verbecks."

Saturday evening brought the Verbecks that were not "other" but prompt, optimistic, philosophic—an ideal twain on whom to try a domestic experiment. Great was their reward. Mrs. Van Nostrand had planned a very simple dinner of five courses, and had taken the precaution to order the dessert at the caterer's. She had herself laid and decorated the table and attended to the candles; but even with these old and tried friends her nervousness, as she seated herself, was so great that her first oyster found difficulty in making its way down her contracted throat. For a few moments she could not speak. The soft light of the candles seemed to dance before her eyes, and the cheerful voices of her guests came to her from a distance. Then she became conscious that a very deft, quiet figure was moving about the room, that plates were changed without a sound, that Mr. Verbeck was uttering almost too cordial commendation of the soup. What was he expected? She drank a spoonful. It was steaming hot and perfect. She sat up and began to exercise her role of hostess.

Looking back on that dinner, she remembers it as one of the most delightful experiences of her life.

Course after course was smoothly served, and the viands were so delicately cooked and seasoned that her old friends were wonderfully enthusiastic. Nothing could have been more admirable. Like her husband and her guests, Mrs. Van Nostrand gave herself up to the happiness of the hour. The fond lingered over each dish, new stories were told, old memories were recalled. When Hedwig had served the coffee and liqueurs in the drawing room Mrs. Verbeck turned to her friend with a look of inquiry.

"Well, I like your affection of modesty about your dinner," she said, "and your mean insinuations about your cook. I suppose this is like sending out your visiting card with 'Dancing' in the corner, when three hundred people come at twelve and stay till four. Not that we are complaining, my dear. If Herbert and I had a pearl of such price we'd never dine out!"

Hedwig smiled with fatuous assent. She was having many new sensations this evening, all strangely stimulating. She indulged in the luxury of another.

Mrs. Van Nostrand felt her being leap, as Danae's may have when the shower of gold began; but she was a woman of character, and it showed now. She heard herself speaking with entire calmness. "Little dinners," long dreamed of in the past, had never taken a more tangible shape than dreams since her marriage four months ago.

NINETY-FIVE FRESNO PRECINCTS GIVE SUFFRAGE MAJORITY OF 526

Only Two Amendments at Most Will Be Defeated in This County; Local Suffrage Leaders Planned to Initiate Petition.

Complete returns from 95 precincts in Fresno county out of 112 give a majority of 526 votes for woman's suffrage. As has been the case all over the state, the country precincts were almost all for this amendment, and enough votes were secured to carry Fresno county for equal suffrage.

Among the larger precincts where the vote was close was Sanger. Complete returns showed the vote there to be 51 for suffrage and 83 against.

Although the returns are not yet all in, the count thus far shows that there will be only two amendments defeated in this county, at the most. The amendment providing for railroad passes for police officers and others will in all probability be defeated as there are not enough one-voted votes to overcome the majority now polled against this measure.

The old soldier tax exemption is a close contest with the opposition slightly in the lead. Later returns may change this situation, but this is not considered likely. All the other amendments carried by decisive majorities.

So certain were local people last night that woman's suffrage had been defeated that Mrs. F. A. MacMahon, president of the Clubwoman's Franchise League, gave out a statement to the effect that action would be taken immediately to take advantage of the situation and initiate a petition calling for another election. This is in line with what is being planned in Los Angeles in case the amendment is defeated.

In Huron precinct there were but three votes cast and woman's suffrage failed to get a supporter. The voters of Squaw Valley defeated every amendment proposed except the tax booth amendment, which was carried.

The following are the returns from 94 precincts complete in Fresno county on all the amendments. Ninety-five precincts are recorded in the suffrage vote:

MAN TO DON CUFFS AND HOBBLES AND CROSS CONTINENT

Handcuffed and hobbled Charles G. Le Grand has announced that he will walk across the continent from San Francisco to New York. Information to this effect was received yesterday by the Fresno Chamber of Commerce in a letter from Godt, who expressed his willingness to take any advertisement for this county that that organization deemed advisable.

The letter was read at the regular meeting of the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon but no action was taken in the matter. Godt has not set a date for his start from San Francisco.

WILL DRINK HEALTH OF PRESIDENT TAFT IN CALIFORNIA WINE

On Sunday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, President William H. Taft and his party will visit the flagship California, when they will be received by the commander of the Pacific fleet, Rear Admiral Chauncy Thomas. The sailing of the fleet of the different squadrons about the world while the nation is at war, promises to be a notable sight.

In order that the famous onyx and gold punch bowl, presented by the producers of California to the flagship, may be used on this auspicious occasion, twenty dozen cases of choice California dry wine are to be sent out to the vessel on its arrival from Southern waters on Thursday by the Grape Growers' Association of California, among the firms contributing being: Wetmore, Bowen Company, Italian-Swiss Colony, Wm. Hoelscher & Company, California Wine Association, Napa and Sonoma Wine Company, Inglenook! Wine Agency, A. P.ink's Widow, Lichman and Jacob, the Rosenblatt Co., Schlesinger & Shlender, Theodore Gies Wine Company and Sacramento Valley Winery.

The plentiful supply of California's red and white wines will enable all the notable visitors to the flagship on Sunday to drink to the President's health, the success of this great exposition and the prosperity of California's valuable viticultural industry.

C. OF C. CONDEMNS TRACT OF LAND NEAR CITY

Also Denounces Emil Firth of Los Angeles, Who Is Selling Property.

Executive Committee Says
Land Is Totally Unfit for Cultivation.

Acting on evidence produced to show that the Fresno Valley Tract, near the city of Fresno, in this county, is worthless for agricultural purposes, such as the growing of alfalfa, the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday condemned the tract as unfit for tillage and also condemned the action of Emil Firth of Los Angeles, who has the tract for sale in subdivided parcels, in placing the land on the market and selling it at values that are rare only in the case of good agricultural land.

The action of the Chamber of Commerce followed an investigation that has been carried on for several weeks, regarding the property and one sale that has been made.

The sole in question was made to Mrs. Ella B. Best, a widow, residing in Fellows.

The matter was first brought to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce by G. T. Blaney of Visalia, who is seeking to recover from Firth, payments made by his sister on the land, on the grounds that it was not as represented.

Blaney first took the matter up with District Attorney Church, but the latter advised him to present his case to the Chamber of Commerce. He also took the matter up with the district attorney of Los Angeles county, but was informed there that any man has a legal right to sell any worthless property for as much as he can get, if he can prove that he believed this was the true value. Although Blaney says a representative of the Fresno district attorney's office informed him that Firth's action was in case of defrauding money under false pretenses, the Los Angeles district attorney informed him it was in case for the civil court.

The land in question was sold by Firth for $300 an acre, in an affidavit made in Fresno on September 21, 1911, F. R. Reposa, A. B. Butler and E. F. C. Moller, ranchers living in the immediate vicinity of the tract, pronounced it unfit for farming and said that $50 an acre would be an exorbitant price.

Blaney further declares that Firth violated his written agreement with his salesman, Mr. Flinn, who made the sale to Mrs. Best, in which he agreed to refund money if the property was not satisfactory. Mr. Flinn, who is not now in the employ of Firth, has the letter, Blaney says, and will submit it as evidence.

In a letter to the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Best says the property was sold to her in first class alfalfa land with a good stand of alfalfa, sown in March. She further said that the land was declared to be free from hardpan and alkali and would produce from 1½ to 2 tons of alfalfa to the acre.

Before taking the action condemning Firth and the Fresno Valley Trust, the Chamber of Commerce sent him a letter advising him of the charges that had been made and requesting him to rectify any mistakes in case there were any. The letter is still unanswered.

RAILROAD GUARDS AND FIREMEN HAVE FIGHT

Railroad Policemen Arrested for Battery; Other Arrests to Follow.

Hospitals between Southern Pacific railroad yards and four members of the city fire department occurred in the railroad yards yesterday afternoon and resulted in the arrest of W. Beck, a member of the state railroad police, on a charge of battery. Beck was cited to appear before City Justice Graham tomorrow morning to answer to the charge. W. Washburn, C. J. Lindrose, Claude Dawson and Lisle Stevens are the firemen who had trouble in the railroad yards. Beck stated last night that today he would swear a complaint charging the four firemen with disturbing the peace. He also declared that he could smell liquor on their breath. The firemen were in citizens clothes and were not on duty.

The trouble occurred when the four men attempted to walk down the railroad tracks from Tulare street to the depot platform and then over to Commercial park. The men were challenged in the yards by a railroad guard, who told them that they would have to go back and that they would not be allowed to pass through the gates at the depot. According to Lindrose, he asked the guard what authority he had and by reply the guard is alleged to have pulled off his coat and to have fought with the firemen. Beck is then said to have approached and to have struck Lindrose over the head with a "billie." Lindrose appeared before City Justice Graham yesterday afternoon and swore by Patrolman Cushing.

The men claim that the blame was all on the part of the railroad men. They say that they were attacked and that they had done nothing to warrant the attack.

Beck said last night, "I was sitting on a pile of lumber in the yards when I saw the four men coming down the tracks from Tulare street toward the depot. I saw the guard stop them and presently I saw three of the men start to walk past the guard. He grabbed at them and before I reached the spot they were all engaged in a free-for-all fight. One of the men struck at me and I hit him over the head with my club."

Lindrose was not injured but his derby hat was smashed.
